Ackerley's KCCN 'deal' gives Peninsula shaft

IF EVER a community and a work force in this country have been mugged and violated by an arrogant, contemptuous absentee corporation, it happened last week right here in River City!

The corporation is Ackerley Communications of Seattle.

THE muggees and rapees are the Monterey Peninsula and the 70 employees of KCCN television.

Ackerley entered into a "local television marketing agreement" with Harron Communications of Philadelphia, KCCN's licensed owner, to take over the whole kit and kaboodle and run it however it pleases for

FRIENDLY FIRE

While the Monterey Peninsula was sweltering in the heat Tuesday — with temperatures hitting 98 in Carmel Valley, 88 in Carmel — Dr. Bruce Carter of Carmel could be found enjoying his day off in a shady spot amidst the cozy confines of Friendly Plaza in Monterey. After nearly a week of unseasonably hot weather, cooler temperatures are expected to return to the area on Friday and throughout the weekend.

■ Special Report: The 1993 commercial rezoning appears a success, but more time is needed to understand its full impacts.

By PAUL WOLF

ON THE eve of the June 1993 special election, as Carmel voters contemplated the commercial rezoning question called Measure H, many wondered how the average voter could wade through its mind-numbing complexities.

After all, even the best-informed people in town did not understand every nuance of the proposal.

Today, nearly three years after Measure H passed by 10 votes, understanding its impacts on downtown character is an equally difficult task.

According to Carmel Planning Director Brian Roseth, it's still too soon to determine the measure's full effects.

"I can't make any definitive statements yet," he said. "It will take at least 10 years to get a true indication of the effects of the measure."

To Measure H critics like Councilwoman Barbara Livingston, such slowness to judge is as worrisome as the measure itself. "Ten years," she declared, "is enough time to give away the whole city. The village could go down the tubes in that time."

But how much evidence is there that Measure H is doing — or will do — harm? At this point, there is little, or at least little evidence of anything that can't be fixed.

For the most part, the rezoning seems to do what it sets out to do: Streamline the permit process for both the city's professional staff and for those requesting projects; create flexibility in the zoning code; and place limits on the most extreme forms of tourist-catering enterprises, particularly T-shirt shops.

Good report card

A recent update from Roseth's department gives Measure H a good, albeit preliminary, report card on the changing "mix of businesses" in the commercial zones. His report, in combination with comments from council members and others, leads to

El Sur Ranch owner, Big Sur Land Trust seek to strike deal to protect viewshed

By SUSAN BECK

A CHANCE to preserve nearly four miles of coastal views from the Big Sur Valley to the Little Sur River near Hurricane Point hinges on fragile negotiations set in motion last week.

After two years of discussions, The Big Sur Land Trust announced Tuesday that it filed an application April 25 with the Monterey County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs to purchase the development rights of almost half of the 7,500-acre El Sur Ranch.

"It's the single most beautiful piece of coastal property that I know of," said Lawrence Horan, attorney for James J. Hill III, owner of the cattle ranch.

If granted, the Big Sur Land Trust would purchase from Hill a conservation easement that will prohibit development on land that may been seen from Highway 1 toward the Pacific Ocean and eastward to the Santa Lucia Mountain range, according to Zad Leavy, attorney for the land trust.

Jepson to leave CBA post next month; headed for Death Valley

By PAUL WOLF

THE NAMES of the resorts — the Furnace Creek Inn and Stovepipe Wells Resort — are a giveaway about the climate that the Jepsons will live with.

Cal Jepson, former general manager of the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, has already settled in at Death Valley, where he is serving as general manager of the inn, the resort and Scotty's Castle — all of which are operated by Amfac Parks and Resorts.

Meanwhile, before joining her husband, Toni Jepson will continue as executive director of the Carmel Business Association through June 14, when she steps down. She has held the post for five-and-a-half years.

"I am going to miss Carmel terribly," Jepson said, noting that she and her husband will return to their Carmel Views home for periodic visits. "It is always going to be home in my heart."

All Saints' reaches out to Oklahoma for next leader

New headmaster to begin July 1 at CV school.

THE DOYLE C. TUNNELL FILE

- Age: 53.
- New position: Headmaster at All Saints' Episcopal Day School, Carmel Valley.
- Start date: July 1, 1996.
- Current position: Director of Middle Division, Casady School, Oklahoma City, Okla., 1983-present.
- Family: Wife — Sandra; children — Jon, Tracie, Bruce, Melanie.
- Education: University of Tulsa, MA, education administration, 1974; Oklahoma University, BS, education, 1964.

By DOUG THOMPSON

AN OKLAHOMA private school educator has been selected as the new headmaster at All Saints' Episcopal Day School in Carmel Valley.

Doyle C. Tunnell, director of the middle division at Casady School, an Episcopalian prekindergarten through 12th grade school in Oklahoma City, will assume his new duties July 1.

Tunnell replaces Jay Roudebush, who has served as the interim headmaster for the past year. Roudebush, who began his career as a teacher at All Saints' in 1969, will start a new position — director of academic affairs — at Norwood School in Bethesda, Md., where he had been principal of the upper elementary grades.

Roudebush's interim stint gave ASDS the opportunity to conduct a one-year search for a permanent replacement for Laurie Boone Hogen, the headmistress of 18 years who moved to Connecticut last summer.

Frequent visitor

Tunnell made three visits in a span of four months to All Saints' Day School before being notified he was the top choice.

"It's an outstanding school — a leading educational institution in Monterey County," Tunnell said. "Everyone at All Saints' has been very warm and welcoming. I was real impressed.

"To be put in a leadership position is a real honor. We'll be looking for the school to grow even further."

For the past 12 years, Tunnell has headed grades five through eight at Casady. He said his new role won't differ a great deal from his present position.

"As a headmaster, I will have a lot of contact with students and parents, and be very involved in the day-to-day operation," he said. "It's not unlike what I'm doing now."

According to Chick Hawley, vice-chairman of the ASDS board of trustees and head of the search committee,

Shameless in Seattle: Ackerley's dirty deed

an unspecified price.

(THE REASON the euphemism "local marketing agreement" is used instead of "sale" is that present Federal Communications Commission rules prevent an owner from owning more than one television station in the same market area, and Ackerley already owns KCBA in Salinas. Thus, technically, Harron still owns the license but that's all.)

SO what was the kindly Ackerley firm's first act with its new toy? With no warning whatsoever, it summarily fired all 70 of the station's employees at a staff meeting, and posted guards at the doors to make sure the employees didn't steal anything on the way out!

TAKEOVER AT KCCN

(We are trying very hard to envision the Ackerley folks as adults — but gawd, it's difficult.)

SECONDLY, Ackerley announced it was dropping all local news programs on KCCN, and replaced them with such fodder for the mind as reruns of Married ... With Children and Cops.

Thirdly, it announced it was moving the station out of Monterey — lock, stock and sensitivity — and will run it from its KCBA digs in Salinas.

KEEP in mind, KCCN is licensed by the FCC to operate out of MONTEREY, not Salinas, but whether such details will bother the FCC remains to be seen. (If Al Davis can get away with it, why not Ackerley?)

Remember one more thing — the owners of KSBW (Smith Limited Partners Inc.) reached a tentative agreement with Harron last December for one of those same "limited marketing agreements to take over KCCN (the agreement later fell through before it went into effect).

BUT Smith planned to RETAIN the KCCN staff and to CONTINUE operating in Monterey.

When Ackerley heard about that agreement, it fired off a protest to FCC — calling such an agreement totally unfair, a violation of FCC rules, a blow to motherhood and a threat to world peace. (We threw in those last two.)

SO then Ackerley quietly turns 180 degrees, talks out of the other side of its mouth, and negotiates an LMA, itself!

Can this be called DUPLICITY, or is it just "Seattle ethics?"

THE UPSHOT of all this is that the Monterey Peninsula no longer has an English-speaking television station, and 70 highly qualified employees, their spouses and children are dumped out on the street without even a one-day notice to try to find other employment.

And the Peninsula has no television news voice of its own any more.

IF the FCC, Congressman Sam Farr, Leon Panetta, the area's business community and the general public let Ackerley get away with this obscenity, then there is absolutely no justice and we are the doormats Ackerley and Harron figured us to be.

TO FURTHER illustrate Ackerley's unmitigated gall and imperiousness, a spokesman for them — one Dan Evans — said with straight face that KCCN was in such bad financial shape it might have gone out of business without Ackerley's intervention!

MIGHT have gone out of business? What the hell does he think Ackerley did to it? If KCCN was ailing, then the kindly Ackerley was the Dr. Kevorkian that ended its pain!

EVANS said one more incredible thing that brought tears to these old eyes and certainly convinced me that his people care, they really care:

"The biggest downside of this type of transaction is the employees ... It's never an easy deal to let people go." (But we do it anyway.)

YOU can just tell they're totally broken up over matical and artistic abilities in harmony. "I just try to do all the work they give me at school. I like to try and do my best."

For a recent art assignment, Thompson created a poster to illustrate a quote about the numbing effects of advanced technology. He photographed a coarsely molded clay figure and scanned the image onto a computer.

Then he strategically placed geometric shapes between the quote and the clay man. Creating a halo effect, Thompson embellished his statement with the incorporation of an Internet logo above the figure.

"It's a comment on the electronic age," he said. "People are processing more and more information and not looking at the world."

Thompson's ability to reflect on the information he has processed has earned him not only the test scores and grades that qualify him for a National Merit Scholarship but also the reputation of a well-rounded individual.

"This is a Renaissance man," said Suzanne Rumbaugh, the director of the art department. "He's very curious about life; he's self-motivated, he's hard-working and very gifted."

Rumbaugh said Thompson has enough flexibility to exhibit creativity yet follow strict guidelines — the kind of attitude the National Merit Scholarship Corporation considers worthy of its highest awards.

Greg Foster, head of the Upper School, said one of the remarkable qualities about Thompson is his ability to maintain a low profile in the midst of his achievements.

"It's amazing," he said. "Evan is quiet, unassuming, a wonderful artist and an articulate speaker.We're really proud of his achievements."

Thompson has earned a 3.83 grade point average, has scored 800 on the verbal section and 680 on the math section on the SATs and takes three advanced placement courses.

He will use the scholarship money to pay for his tuition at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

"I'm not sure of my major," Thompson said. "I want to go into art and design."

Meanwhile, as he finishes his senior year at RLS, Thompson plans to continue to work hard.

"I think education is important," he said. "If you want to get a good job and make a contribution to society, you have to take education seriously."

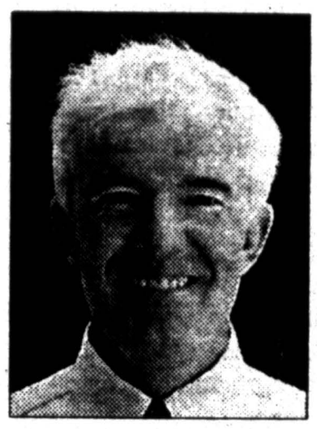
MPWMD pressured to impose rationing, moratorium

By PAUL WOLF

THE RESERVOIRS may be full, the aquifers recharged and the landscape moist from two wet winters. But Peninsula water directors are under increasing pressure to think about two unthinkables — rationing and moratorium.



Dick Ely

There are many unpleasant memories of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's imposition of these measures.

A six-month period of mandatory rationing, which ended Jan. 1, 1989, called for Peninsula residents and businesses to reduce water consumption by 20 percent.

And a bitter 28-month-long moratorium on new water connections ended in August 1993.

Although MPWMD directors are unlikely to embrace either of the two measures any time soon, they won't be able to avoid the topics for long.

"If, after two wet years, we impose a moratorium (on new water connections) and start rationing now, people are going to say, 'What the heck is going on?'" MPWMD director Dick Ely, who represents Carmel and the greater Carmel area, told the newspaper this week.

This time around, however, drought is not the problem; it is, rather, legal problems surrounding the Peninsula's water supply.

The MPWMD staff is studying the topics of rationing and moratorium and will return with recommendations to the board. "We are not going to do anything drastic right off the bat, but we have to keep all options open," said MPWMD Chairwoman Darlene Burkleo.

Broaching topics

The twin subjects were raised last week when former MPWMD directors Fran Farina and Patricia Bernardi urged the district, via a letter by attorney Jane Haines, to take strong measures to reduce Peninsula water usage.

In addition, the former directors urged the repeal of ordinances that distribute water credits for projects that result in savings. Farina admits that she, as MPWMD chairwoman last year, helped to adopt some of the ordinances, but they may no longer be appropriate since the voters turned down the New Los Padres Dam at the polls in November.

Farina and Bernardi are not the only ones trying to get the district to rein in water demand.

Last month, a six-person citizens group called POWR (Protect our Water Resources) began circulating a petition seeking a November initiative to freeze water demand.

Although the proposed measure does not mention rationing, the need for a moratorium on new hook-ups is "implicit" in the legislation, POWR co-chair Janice O'Brien said this week.

Farina said immediate action must be taken to prepare for the Peninsula's loss of the legal right to 80 percent of the water that the California-American Water Co. draws from the Carmel River.

Last summer, after ruling that Cal-Am must make up for unlawful river pumping,

TUNNELL: ASDS taps Oklahoman

the school received nearly 30 applications and invited 11 candidates for a campus visit.

"After Laurie, we needed somebody who is energetic, and I think we found that person," Hawley, a Monterey businessman, said. "In all of our interviews, including our visit of his campus, the description that everybody kept coming back to about Doyle is that he's a real 'solid guy.' He listens well and he's very energetic."

Instant attraction

Tunnell said he had an immediate attraction to the opening at ASDS.

"When I read the description of the school, I found it to be very similar to Casady," he said. "The curriculum, the atmosphere, the uniforms — it's a small Casady."

All Saints' Day School, which sits on 12 acres in the valley, has an enrollment of 210 with students in grades kindergarten through eighth. Conversely, Casady is situated on 85 acres with an enrollment of 950 children.

Tunnell brings two years of experience in California education circles, having been headmaster of Santa Barbara-based Laguna Blanca School from 1981-83.

Tunnell's boss, the headmaster at Casady School, said Tunnell should be a perfect fit for All Saints' Day School.

"It's a good match," said Barnaby Roberts, Casady headmaster for the past six years. "He has a strong knowledge of the age group, of California and of the role of the church."

"It's been very important to me that he's a good churchman," Roberts said of Tunnell, who is on the Southwest Association of Episcopal Schools Board.

Roberts added that parents will find Tunnell's personality much to their liking.

"He is resilient, calm and unflappable," he observed. "It takes a lot for a younger student to surprise Doyle Tunnell. He has seen it all."

But Tunnell is excited about the prospect of seeing more.

"This is a time of my life when I could

Oklahoma City bombing left its mark on Tunnell

DOYLE TUNNELL will never forget the moment.

At 9:02 a.m. CDT on April 19, 1995, the director of middle division at Casady School in Oklahoma City was sitting in his office.

"I thought a bomb had gone off on campus," recalled Tunnell, the newly named headmaster at All Saints' Episcopal Day School. "I thought for sure it went off here."

But Casady School is 10 miles south of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, which had been ripped apart by a powerful bomb. A total of 168 people died in the explosion that made headlines around the world.

"It has been a difficult year," Tunnell said. "We were fortunate that no families at Casady were involved. But there was an incredible impact on the community and the school. We indirectly knew people who lost loved ones."

Casady said the tragedy of more than a year ago has brought residents of Oklahoma City closer together.

"Being a church-oriented school — we attend chapel service every day — has given us a great deal of foundation to rely on," said Tunnell. "We have worked through a lot of it. I truly believe it's made us a better community."

RATIONING

the State Water Resources Control Board ordered the company to develop new supplies. That is no simple task, considering the MPWMD's failure to secure public support for the dam and for the 1993 desalination proposal.

Interim solution

As a short-term measure, the state board asked Cal-Am to reduce its total water production by 15 percent in the first year and 20 percent in the second.

The pumping reductions buy the Peninsula time, but the question remains: How much will the state allow Cal-Am to pump the river after 1997?

"It takes time to prepare a rationing program," Farina said. "The only reason the citizens aren't feeling the pain right now is that the state hasn't really asked (the citizens) to do anything yet. But October 1997 will be here before you know it."

The state board's order last year did not call for a halt to new connections or a new program of rationing. Instead, it called for boosting the Peninsula water supply.

"The order intended to give the community a grace period of a couple of years to develop a solution to the water supply problem, not to impose an onerous penalty on the Peninsula," said MPWMD Senior Planner Henrietta Stern.

In addition to the pressure being brought to bear by POWR and the two former directors, the MPWMD is due for its five-year review of its water distribution plan in the 1996-97 fiscal year.

Five years ago, the allocation plan did not factor in the legal problems with the Carmel River supply. A change in the allocation alone could necessitate a moratorium, according to water officials.

Prop. 13 focus of lecture

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Taxpayers Association (MPTA) will discuss the status of Proposition 13, passed by California voters in 1978, at an 11 a.m. luncheon Monday at Rancho Cañada Golf & Country Club, east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road.

The cost is $15 for MPTA members, $20 for non-members.

Guest speaker Joel Fox, president of the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association, will address the status of the "right to vote on taxes" initiative and update other local and state-wide tax issues at the luncheon.

be gearing down, I suppose," Tunnell, 53, said. "But I'm ready to gear up."

The move will allow Tunnell to be closer to his 25-year-old daughter, Tracie, who was recently named as the director of human relations for Underwater World, the newly opened aquarium at San Francisco's Pier 39.

The first and biggest challenge awaiting Tunnell, however, will be finding a home for him and his wife, Sandra, who is director of special services for a large public school district in Oklahoma. Their visit to the Monterey Peninsula this weekend is specifically a house-hunting expedition.

"We're moving from one of the lowest-priced housing markets in the country to one of the highest," Tunnell said. "I'm sure it will be somewhat of a shock."

Mom's Day contest to begin Friday

Many Monterey and Carmel area moms are anxiously awaiting the beginning of the First Annual Mother's Day Contest which begins Friday, May 3. The contest, which will make mom feel like a Queen for a day, takes place at The Crossroads Shopping Center. The prize is bountiful. First prize is Mom's Day Dinner for four at The Fish Ranch Seafood Restaurant which is featuring a wonderful Mom's Day menu. The first place winner also receives a gift basket from Bountiful Baskets at The Crossroads. Second prize is lunch for four at The restaurant and third prize is lunch for two.

"We have been planning this event for weeks," said Karen Foley of The Fish Ranch, adding, "We have informal fashion shows planned for next Thursday and Friday during lunch. The clothes from Jane Archer, Exotica, and Parrots will be featured. Plus our new summer lunch menu will be introduced.

But the real winner will be the mom whose name is drawn on Saturday, May 11 at noon. She will not only receive a number of gifts, but she will experience one of the best Mother's Day meals she has ever had. The Fish Ranch Seafood Restaurant does it right. Fresh fish, daily. Great Prices. A wonderful wine list and live entertainment every Friday and Saturday night. But this year in honor of Mom, Music will be filling the air on Mother's Day as moms can request their favorite songs. A photographer will also be on hand to take every Mom's picture at The Fish Ranch during Mother's Day Meals. So everybody will be a winner. So don't miss out on this one. Stop by The Crossroads, right above Mailboxes Etc., to fill out your entry blank and make reservations. The Fish Ranch not only offers the freshest fish this side of the aquarium but this week they are offering a contest which will make mom feel like royalty.

FITZPATRICK: Just who benefits?

shattering these people's lives, but they'll try to muddle through somehow.

Evans, who should be a hot candidate for a leading role in the next movie of George Orwell's 1984, concluded his bizarre remarks with this mind-boggler:

"THIS will be a benefit to the community."

Clank.

WE can only assume the community he's talking about is Seattle.

ACKERLEY has announced that KCCN will resume local news broadcasts June 3 out of the KCBA newsroom with KCBA management and Lord-only-knows-who for anchors. (Will FCC stand still for that?)

If you are familiar with KCBA's own soporific newscasts, you'll surely rejoice at this swell prospect.

UP until now, the "CCN" in KCCN's call letters have stood for "Central Coast News." But that is clearly folly now, and the new meaning of the letters must be changed to:

"Caca Clinkers Nightly!"

Here's one example of KCBA's crack news coverage. When the story broke about Ackerley taking over KCCN, it was front-page news in both the Californian and the Bland and it was a featured story on KSBW newscasts, but ...

KCBA never mentioned it at all. And STILL hasn't!

Is this due simply to hopelessly incompetent news judgment by KCBA's minions? Or is it one more example of that cavalier, public-be-damned Seattle "style?"

AS for Harron, we can think of very little to say — because there was very little there. That firm was clueless about how to run a TV station. But in fairness, their forté is the operation of eastern cable TV systems, not individual stations. Even THEY realize that now, I trust.

What KCCN employee (or should we say former employee) will ever forget the specter of Harron's "Disappearing Bob" Herbst ... well, never mind.

WE cannot stress enough the admiration we have for the gutsy (Salinas) Californian newspaper which editorially lambasted Ackerley for its contemptible treatment of KCCN employees, calling it "a rude and despicable act of brutality."

Furthermore, the Californian said, "Ackerley has succeeded in convincing many of us that too many corporations are greedy, cold-hearted and hold little, if any, compassion for their employees."

The editorial concluded, "Ackerley, shame on you."

Those four words should be remembered by all of us — along with the new meaning of what KCCN's call letters stand for.

IT should be noted that the Monterey County Bland took no editorial position at all on the mugging of the Peninsula and the 70 KCCN employees, but there was good reason for that:

None of the 70 employees was a teenaged Salinas theology student, so what's the big deal?

CHS students spruce up local park

By KENDALL KLYM

AFTER JESSIE Franklin retires, she would like to take long strolls through Mission Trails Park to see the towering trees she planted as seedlings.

It's kind of hard to dig holes, but it feels good to plant something that's going to last for 100 years," said Franklin, an 18-year-old student participating in Carmel High School's National Service Day 1996 on April 23. "Maybe I'll be back to hike."

In an effort to beautify an already scenic park while challenging the stereotype that all teen-agers are up to no good, approximately 90 out of 139 students showed up at the park April 23. They participated in a variety of projects ranging from planting trees to building trail markers.

"We're trying to get kids working in the community, and we're trying to get the community to work with kids," said Jack Ellena, community service coordinator at Carmel High School. "When they come back years later and see the grown trees, they can say, 'I planted that.'"

Part of a national celebration sponsored by Youth Service America, the Jefferson Awards, the Lutheran Brotherhood, the Points of Light Foundation and the U.S. Congress of Mayors, the project brought adults and teens together for a day of manual labor.

At the park

On a grassy slope of the park known as Martin Meadow, Karen Ferlito, chairwoman of the Carmel Forest and Beach Commission, joined six students in a weed-pulling extravaganza.

"We're identifying an exotic invasive weed called genista and eradicating it from the meadow area," Ferlito said, holding an armful of scraggly-stemmed plants with yellow flowers.

Ferlito watched while two students tugged on one of the hearty weeds.

"Go ahead and try to pull it out," said Sarah Butcher to Rebecca Unger.

Unger pulled with both hands, but the weed held fast to the ground.

"It won't budge," Unger said.

After pooling their strengths, Butcher and Unger tackled the weed, and Ferlito picked up the plant carcass and put it in a pile.

In another section of the park, a group of students worked with Cliff Hatch, Carmel's official city tree climber, building a trail barrier to discourage hikers from veering off the path.

"These kids worked really hard," Hatch said. "We really appreciate it."

The interaction between adults and teen-agers went so well that Noel Van Bibber, a member of the Friends of Carmel Forest, wants to set up a park maintenance committee with teens and adults.

"I'd like to set up a park maintenance crew with two or three kids on it," Van Bibber said. "They can come here once a month, pick up trash and maintain the trees that were planted today."

If the committee does form, members will have to keep tabs on approximately 90 trees that were planted by graduating seniors paying their last respects to Carmel before heading off to college and other endeavors.

CHS seniors Jessie Franklin and Marcy Connelly put some elbow grease into planting pine seedlings at Mission Trails Park during National Service Day activities held April 23.

SPCA to offer microchip implanting Sunday

THE SPCA of Monterey County will offer low-cost microchip implanting, a new method of identification for dogs and cats, from 9 a.m. to noon Sunday at the SPCA, located on Highway 86 across from Laguna Seca.

Microchips are the size and shape of a grain of rice and are implanted between the animal's shoulder blades in a procedure no more painful than an injection. The information on the chip is stored on a computer database and it can include the owner's name and phone number, an alternate contact, the animal's veterinarian and information about the animal's medical history. A scanner is used to find the chip and retrieve the information.

The cost for implantation is $15, and the procedure takes about five minutes.

More information: 373-2631, ext. 237.

Wednesday lecture focuses on Arab-Israeli conflict

THE WORLD Affairs Council of the Monterey Bay Area will present a lecture by Dr. Bernard Reich on the continuing Arab-Israeli conflict at a 11:30 a.m. luncheon Wednesday at the Holiday Inn, 1000 Aguajito Road in Monterey.

The cost, which includes lunch, is $15 for members, $18 for non-members. Reservations are required.

Reich is chairman of Advanced Area Studies on the Middle East at the State Department and lectures at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

Reservations: 625-0208 by Friday.

Forum puts spotlight on November election

THE MONTEREY Peninsula College Foundation, in co-sponsorship with the World Affairs Council of Monterey Bay, will conduct a panel discussion on Election '96 at 7:30 p.m Thursday, May 9 in Lecture Forum 103 of MPC. The event is free.

Panelists will include historian Richard Kezirian and political scientist David Yamada, both instructors at MPC; international relations expert Steven Baker of the Monterey Institute of International Studies; and the Naval Postgraduate School's Ed Olsen, an expert in national security affairs.

Kezirian will present a historical overview of the presidency and its relationship with Congress; Yamada will talk about his recent sabbatical in Washington, D.C. and his observations of the country's leadership; Baker will talk about the international implications; and Olsen will comment on the presidential campaign still to come.

SHERIFF'S LOG

she saw racoons.

THURSDAY, APRIL 25

Big Sur: A welfare check was made on a woman who was reported to be distraught. When contacted, the woman admitted she was upset and had been drinking, but did not want to hurt herself. Deputies advised her to get some sleep and call if she needed further assitance.

Carmel Valley: Deputies observed a pickup truck spinning its wheels on a turn and later failing to yield at a traffic stop. The driver was found to have a suspended license and an unregistered vehicle.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that a neighbor's dog had bitten his three-year-old son.

Pebble Beach: A man returned home to find his back door open. Since his maid had recently vacuumed, only the man's footprints were found at the scene.

Carmel: A woman reported that an elderly man had pulled his car up next to hers and invited her to get into his car and "connect" with him. The woman refused and the man drove off.

FRIDAY, APRIL 26

Carmel Valley: A woman reported having trouble with her live-in boyfriend. The boyfriend agreed to move back to his mother's house after deputies spoke with him.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported being pushed and struck in the head by her stepfather. The stepfather denied the allegation and stated he was the one struck.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her 14-year-old son had not returned home when scheduled. It was later established he was at another location in the valley with a group of juveniles.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported getting into a verbal argument with her live-in boyfriend. Both parties were intoxicated when contacted, and agreed to talk rationally with each other the following morning. No physical violence had occurred.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27

Carmel: A woman reported being concerned about her husband's ongoing alcoholism. The two had been arguing about his drinking for the past six days.

Carmel: A woman reported that her daughter had left their house in a depressed condition. The father had followed his daughter's car, and both had already returned to the house by the time deputies arrived.

Pebble Beach: A man reported the theft of his $500 cellular phone from his car. There were no suspects or witnesses.

Carmel Valley: An inn employee reported being frightened after seeing two unknown subjects on inn grounds. It was later discovered that the two were guests of another inn employee who lives on the grounds.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her husband, an occasional resident at the house, had broken a window on her car with his fist.

Carmel Valley: A bar employee reported that a man was outside the bar causing a disturbance. The man had damaged part of a fence and had thrown a rock through a back window.

SUNDAY, APRIL 28

Carmel: A woman reported the theft of cleaning supplies left next to her garage.

Carmel Valley: Two men attacked a third, who suffered a punctured lung and other injuries. An investigation is ongoing.

Carmel Valley: A couple had an argument at home. The husband threw some belongings but did not injure his wife, who left the house voluntarily.

Carmel Valley: A ranch employee reported that a group of Jehovah's Witnesses had trespassed onto ranch property.

Carmel Valley: A nanny reported that a juvenile living at the house where she works was out of control and throwing things. The juvenile's tantrum stemmed from her disapproval of the nanny living in the house. There were no injuries or property damage.

Carmel Valley: A man complained of a neighbor's dog running loose in the neighborhood. The neighbor was cited.

Pebble Beach: A man reported a possible burglary in progress at a neighboring house. Deputies determined the individuals were not burglars, but rather the residents of the home.

MONDAY, APRIL 29

Carmel Valley: A man reported that someone had broken into his vehicle and removed his stereo and speakers.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that four suspicious men were in a feed store asking strange questions about animals. The men did not purchase anything and left without incident.

Carmel Valley: A woman found marijuana in her son's room and reported him. Deputies cited the son to probation.

Carmel Highlands: A man had his cellular phone stolen from his hotel room.

HOME IS WHERE THE HEART IS.

At Community Care, we know there's nothing better than home. That's why we offer Sunrise/Sunset Service for individuals who only need home assistance in the morning and evening hours. Caregivers help with breakfast, laundry and other morning chores, and then return in the evening to prepare dinner and help with the bedtime routine. This service also ensures that the client has personal contact with someone at least twice-daily. Call to find out more about our supervised care program. It's an affordable way to live where you feel the best — at home.

Carmel Rec teeming with events, activities

An Active Interest

By DAWN PEASE

WE'RE BACK! After a long break, this column, alerting you to all the news involving the Carmel Recreation Department, has returned.

And we reappear with a lot of news! Here's a closer look:

■ We want to welcome Pam Poma, our new assistant at Carmel Rec! Pam will be in the office from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Monday through Friday, and available to get you registered for any activities or courses in which you're interested and answer any questions that you might have.

■ Thank you to the many organizations and individuals who made donations to this year's Easter Egg Hunt, which was held April 6 at Carmel Middle School. It was a great success.

Chief among those who deserve thanks are Bud Wescot and the Carmel Host Lions Club, including Clyde Klaumann, Tom Korper, Yvonne Campbell, Mike Kalalkis and Bob Mahl.

Thank you also to The Forge in the Forest, Berkeley Farms, Safeway stores in the Mid Valley and Crossroads, Bruno's Market, Mediterranean Market, Thrifty Drugs, Little Swiss Cafe, Lucky in Pacific Grove and Barney Belleci of State Farm Insurance in Carmel.

■ "Fun With Clay," a fun opportunity for children and parents alike, is on the Carmel Rec schedule Saturday in Room 16 at Sunset Center. "Fun with Clay" is a chance for children, ages 5 and up, to enjoy the pleasure of hand building in clay.

Instructor David Allan will provide everything one needs in order to create various pots, boxes and sculptures. Children ages 5 through 7 must be accompanied by an adult.

Call us now because preregistration is required at a cost of $18 for Carmel residents and $23 for nonresidents.

■ Please join us from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 18 for the dedication of the Harriette Rowntree Cottage at Sunset Center.

The event is not only designed to honor the memory of a dedicated supporter of recreation in Carmel, but also to raise funds for Carmel's after-school youth program and the Carmel Fire Department's "Jaws of Life" fund.

The adult lunch menu priced at $7.50 consists of a tri-tip sandwich, macaroni salad, a bag of chips, a soft drink or coffee and a piece of cake. The children's lunch menu, priced at $3, includes a hot dog, bag of chips, soda and cake.

Tickets can be purchased at Nielsen Bros Market, Carmel City Hall, Sunset Center and the Carmel Fire Department. Come out to the lower parking lot at Sunset Center for an afternoon of community friendship and support!

■ Hop aboard the bus with us to Lake Tahoe's South Shore for another in our popular series of Slot Trek Tours. This excursion calls for a three-day, two-night stay at Harvey's Lake Tahoe, June 5-7. We'll enjoy the beauty of Lake Tahoe, hopefully enjoy the luck of the draw and stay in the tower rooms at Harvey's.

En route, we'll warm up by playing bingo!

The price tag — $134.50 / person / double occupancy or $198 / person / single occupancy — includes round-trip bus fare and lodging. Registration and full payment is due by Monday, May 6.

■ Remember Bingo every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in J.O.'s Lumber Room at Vista Lobos, Torres between Third and Fourth! We provide the friends, the food and the fun; you provide the luck! Hope to see you there.

If you wish to contact the Carmel Recreation Division to register or request more information about any of the programs, you may call Dawn or Pam at 626-1255. The office is located in the Sunset Center Administrative Office, San Carlos between Eighth and Ninth.

public notice

Study results available.
Do you want a public hearing on the proposed Carmel River Mitigation Bank Project?

WHAT' BEING PLANNED

CALTRANS (California Department of Transportation) is proposing to create a wetland and riparian forest mitigation bank within the Carmel River State Beach. This mitigation bank will be used to offset unavoidable habitat impacts caused by transportation projects located between Pajaro River and Yankee Point.

This proposed wetland and riparian forest enhancement work will encroach upon existing wetlands and a floodplain. In coordination with local, state and federal resource agencies, every effort has been made to ensure that all practical measures are taken to minimized harm to the existing wetlands and floodplain.

WHY THIS AD

CALTRANS has studied the effects this project may have on the environment. Our studies show it will not significantly affect the quality of the environment. The report that explains why is called a Initial Study/Environmental Assessment. This notice is to tell you of the preparation of the Initial Study/Environmental Assessment and of its availability for you to read and to offer the opportunity for a public hearing. CALTRANS proposes to adopt a Negative Declaration for the proposed Carmel River Mitigation Bank project.

WHAT IS AVAILABLE

Maps, the Initial Study/Environmental Assessment and other project information are available for review and copying at the CALTRANS District Office located at 50 Higuera Street, San Luis Obispo, on weekdays from 7:30 AM to 4:30 PM. The Initial Study/Environmental Assessment is also available at the Carmel Valley Branch of Monterey County Library, located at 65 W. Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley, and the Harrison memorial Library located at Mission & 6th Avenue in Carmel.

WHERE YOU COME IN

Do you have any comments about processing the project with a Initial Study/Environmental Assessment? Do you disagree with the findings of our study as set forth in the Initial Study/Environmental Assessment? Would you care to make any other comments on the project? Would you like a public hearing? Please submit you comments or request for public hearing in writing no later than May 6, 1996 to Gary Ruggerone, Environmental Planning Branch, Caltrans District 5, 50 Higuera Street, San Luis Obispo, CA 93401-5415. If there are no major comments or request for a public hearing, CALTRANS will proceed with the project's design and request approval from the Federal Highway Administration.

CONTACT

For more information about this study or any transportation matter, call CALTRANS at (408) 753-0187.

New PB Co. chief vows to keep resorts ahead of competition

By PAUL WOLF

TO JOHN Chadwell, the issue facing Pebble Beach Co. resorts over the next several years is not their ability to preservation an international stature, but to overtake the growing competition.

"We have to continue to understand what people like and what attracts them to a resort," said the 46-year-old Chadwell, named Monday as the company's president and chief operating officer.

He replaces Tom Oliver, president and top officer for the two hotels and three golf courses since 1984. As vice-president, Chadwell worked closely with Oliver for the past six years.

John Chadwell

Chadwell promises "no major change of direction" for the company, only a heightened watchfulness. "In this industry, you have to keep up with the customer's demands," he said.

And there is evidence Pebble Beach is doing well in the face of competitors. Twice in a span of three years, readers of the Conde Nast Traveler magazine named The Inn at Spanish Bay as the "best mainland resort."

Nevertheless, it is the Hawaiian resorts that are offering the most competition, particularly the five-year-old Manele Bay Hotel and Lodge on the island of Lanai, modeled in large part after Spanish Bay.

Broad duties

Chadwell's principal responsibilities concern the hotel, golf and retail operations.

Paul Leach, chairman of the company's executive committee, called Chadwell "a strong resort operator with broad international experience in the hospitality industry."

Chadwell, a Pacific Grove resident, joined the company in 1989 as general manager of the 270-room Inn at Spanish Bay. Before that, he served in a number of executive positions with Disney Resorts, Meridien Hotels and Hilton International.

The New York-born Chadwell boasts an international background.

Raised since the age of 12 in Mexico City, he graduated from Mexico City's Universidad Militar Latino Americana. In addition, he has worked in various capacities for Hilton and Hotel Meridien in Chile, Spain, Brazil, France and other countries.

In 1989, he was a developer, consultant and a key visionary in the creation of EuroDisneyland, for which he helped shape the project's retail and entertainment operations

Oliver, 59, has been a widely admired but, toward the end of his tenure, an equally beleaguered figure.

In 1994, Oliver and four other defendants were found guilty of bank fraud. In February of this year, a U.S. District Court Judge threw out the case because of lack of evidence.

JEPSON: CBA head to step down

Jepson said the agreement that installed her husband as GM included finding a position for her within the 425-employee organization, but what her exact role will be has not been determined.

CBA President Eddie Johnson said an executive committee is conducting a search for Jepson's replacement. About Jepson, Johnson said, "Toni has brought this organization a long, long way."

Jepson said she and her husband have been looking for an adventure, and they have found one at a destination that is an eight-hour drive from Carmel.

Although the Furnace Creek Inn is located in a lush oasis, temperatures at Death Valley reach 115 to 120 degrees in the peak of summer. The rest of the year, Jepson said, is surprisingly temperate.

"No humidity"

Jepson was quick to find a silver lining about the scorching part of the year.

See TONI page 19

Toni Jepson, who has been executive director of the Carmel Business for the past five and one-half years, will be leaving her post in June.

TOTAL DOG
. . for and about dogs

If you live on the Peninsula, have a dog, even a cat, then surely you're good pals already with the TOTAL DOG. If not, picture a shop with everything for and about the dog. A smattering of its contents, ranging somewhat from Chinese Cresteds to Labradors...figurines, collars and leads, English raincoats, cards and notes, dog crossing signs, textured cotton throws, Christmas ornaments, jewelry, etc. Then add to all of this the best dog-talk anytime, anywhere from owner, May Carpenter! 26366 Carmel Rancho Lane, across from the Barnyard. 624-5553.

MONTEREY PENINSULA VOLUNTEER SERVICES

Have you heard that the popular and oh, so bighearted MPVS THRIFT SHOPhas a new home? Yes, and it's spanking new. The architectural plans, much of the construction and the many finishing touches were all done by volunteers who also run this volunteer shop. Inside, all light, airy, and roomy, a variety of donated quality merchandise – shoes, stuffed animals, men's clothing, original watercolors, "boutique" items, and don't miss the handpainted china from Japan! Furthermore, you'll never believe the prices nor find a better place to browse. 655 Broadway, Seaside. 394-5028. 11 am to 3 pm.

HARRIET DUNCAN

A reminder of the Trunk Show of Fall '96 Fashions, Friday, May 3 at the HARRIET DUNCAN shop where fashions from Da-Rue & Ancora will be informally modeled. The president of Da-Rue, Richard McElrath, will be present to help you with your selections; there'll be light refreshments; a drawing for three $100 gift certificates; and of course, all those other classic lines like NR1, Ann Crimmins, Wellmore, Phillipe Marques, St. Germaine available. Beautiful accessories, as always. 11 am to 4 pm, on 6th between Dolores/Lincoln, Carmel. 624-4912. See you there!

"WHAT NEXT"

Is your career at a standstill? Goals growing hazy and undefined? If so: Margaret Edie's Consulting Practice, "What Next," is designed to assist people who have reached just such crossroads and are not sure of what next. She offers a unique blend of educational and business skills; she helps clients define their situations and see available alternatives; she uses psychological testing when indicated, and through expert guidance helps create new goals. Ms. Eadie holds the master and advanced master degrees in education, counseling and psychometrics. Call her! 373-7400.

Shirley Bradford Hair Design

Wouldn't a gift certificate for personalized hair, nail and skin care be just the right gift for Mother? Pick one up at SHIRLEY BRADFORD HAIR DESIGN, and why not go there yourself? This 20-year-old salon has a select group of professional hairdressers who do it all – cuts, perms, blow drys, roller sets, color. New to the staff, Sue Reynolds, formerly of PG, and Mary Van Tran, a therapeutic manicurist using a new product called Nailtiques you'll love! Salon is tried and true, for men and women. 26346 Carmel Rancho Square, close to the Great Frame Up, Carmel. 625-3222.

Michael's
At The Barnyard

How does American Regional Cuisine in a warm, inviting atmosphere sound? There's more at MICHAEL'S at the Barnyard – heated garden patio, fireplace, full bar, lunch, dinner, and Sunday brunch. And even more – for Mother's Day brunch, photographer, Gregg Wutke, will be taking family portraits in a nearby garden setting at special portrait prices. Plan on MICHAEL'S for Mother's Day Brunch (11 am to 3 pm) and have a famous Bradley dish like Crabcake Benedict or Hickory Smoked Pork Chop with Plum Syrup & Butternut Squash Gratin! Make it MICHAEL'S any day. The Barnyard. 622-5200.

Indulge your Mom unabashedly, soothe her senses like never before, give her a gift she can use. This is easy to do with soap, bath gel, talc or lotion; either one item or a combination of these and many others. RAINBOW SCENT CO. in the Barnyard and in their new store on Lincoln St. in Carmel, in that delightful courtyard next to Carmel Bay Company, has everything you'll need. Both shops are chock-full of affordable choices and heavenly fragrances. Staffs are helpful & will wrap your gifts. Cards there, too. Everything, also, at CRABTREE & EVELYN in Carmel Plaza. 624-4422, Barnyard.

PATRICK'S CONSIGNMENT STORE is brimming over – more than ever, it seems – with antiques, collectibles, jewelry, furniture, dishes, and hundreds of other good things! As well it might, considering 35 dealers have space there. Representing one of the new dealers are 4 cases from VINTAGE SHOP ANTIQUES, formerly of Moss Landing. Among those treasures, the famous Madame Alexander's dolls of the Dione Quint Babies; attractive glass table with rattan chairs by Macguire; other rattan; fascinating marine collection; Thomasville bedroom sets. Come see it yourself! 105 Central, PG. 372-3993.

PRIMROSE of Carmel

Not only is PRIMROSE OF CARMEL a perfect place to shop for Mother's Day, it's a perfect place to shop! But now with mother in mind: ceramic plaques with special messages she'll treasure always; Blue Room Spode mugs (20% off!); relevant pins and earrings of garden gloves, hats, watering cans, etc. in ceramic, pewter, and sterling; beautiful cotton chenille throws; gift boxes with botanical oil and dried flowers for lamp-making; or garden gift baskets they'll help you create! Anything here will be a sensation Sunday morning, May 12! Corner of Mission/Ocean, Carmel. 624-4525.

It's a pleasure to scan the racks at TOWN OR TRAVEL because just about everything you need – for travel or home, is in front of you. Come see the marvelous tops in block patterns in those Leon Levin colors of hot pink, marine blue, jade green; shirts in stripes and novelty trims; an attractive long jacket by David Brooks in this season's popular banana color; classic pants and tops by Robert Scott; vests galore; bathing suits; visor caps (with a frill); and now, petite sizes! ## Personal Perspective

By KENDALL KLYM

Saturday event will do more than 'lift' spirits

ON SATURDAY evening, the Carmel Youth Center will host an uplifting game of wheelchair basketball.

A benefit to raise money for a wheelchair lift at the center, the game has some citizens questioning the necessity of "such an expense," and others lauding it as an integral part of an inclusive community.

After meeting Ben Spangenberg, a 14-year-old disabled Carmel Middle School student who initiated the event with his persistent and positive attitude, I was convinced that the lift would benefit the entire community no matter how many people use it. A simple mechanical device that would enable Spangenberg and others with disabilities to move freely around the facility would also enable teens who have full use of their bodies to meet at least one person who lives with a disability.

Maybe they could gain some insight into how to deal with adversity if they were exposed to Spangenberg, who has risen above his physical limitations to win four gold medals for swimming and two for table tennis at a regional competition for disabled athletes.

I was even further convinced that the community should support this effort when I realized the full intentions behind Spangenberg's persistence.

When he learned that a healthy teen-ager lost all feeling and function in his lower body last year in an accident outside the center, Spangenberg wrote a letter to the city asking for the lift.

In the letter, he said, "Now that I heard the tragic story of a boy who fractured his spinal cord (at the center), I thought it would be a perfect time to ask (for the lift). I would really like to show him how to play wheelchair basketball."

Role models

Such intentions — a combination of personal interest and compassion for a fellow human — should be rewarded as exceptional behavior we would like to see in all youth.

Furthermore, we should take every possible opportunity to impress upon our children and each other that no one is exempt from having an accident that could lead to losses of feeling and function.

In an effort to better understand what it means to be disabled, I arranged to experience life in a wheelchair at the Monterey Skills Center, Inc., a job training facility for disabled people. After bumping into almost every piece of furniture in the office and smashing the bathroom door with one of the wheels of the chair, I entered the wheelchair-accessible lavatory. Once I lined up the chair with the raised toilet, I had to figure out how to lift myself over the arms and onto the toilet seat — not an easy task.

If my functioning legs hadn't come to the rescue at the last minute, I would have landed in the water.

At that moment, I felt the stress a disabled person goes through just to perform basic bodily functions. I felt my own vincibility as a human — dependent on my legs to get me around.

As a result of my experiences, I believe that supporting the Carmel Youth Center's attempt to become handicap-accessible symbolizes our realization of what it is to be human — flesh-covered beings that are physically vulnerable, emotionally sensitive and and willing to help others.

Youth Center event tips off at CHS gym

"GIVE THE Kids a Lift," a wheelchair basketball game to benefit the Carmel Youth Center, will be played at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Carmel High School gymnasium.

Tickets are $12 for adults and $4 for youths under 18.

Participants will include members of the Golden State Warriors, the Olympic Wheelchair Dream Team, the Carmel Police Department's Officers Association, the Gold Rush 49ers Cheerleaders and deejays from KTOM Radio.

Proceeds will go to the Carmel Youth Center Building Fund and Carmel High School sports programs.

Downtown tree work begins Wednesday; officials expect minor inconveniences

CARMEL CITY officials have asked for the patience of residents, merchants and customers who may be inconvenienced by the tree pruning in the business district scheduled to start next week.

Beginning Wednesday and ending no later than May 24, a total of 94 pines will undergo pruning to make them "safer, healthier and more attractive," according to City Forester Gary Kelly.

Contractors for the project are John Ley's Tree Service and Iverson's Tree Service. Although they will try to keep disruption to a minimum, pruning activities will affect parking and foot traffic.

Merchants will be contacted 24 hours prior to work being done near their businesses, Kelly said. No business will be affected for more than one day.

Although work will start as early as 6 a.m. Monday through Friday, power equipment may not be operated until 8 a.m., or until 10 a.m. if the work site is near a motel.

More information: Gary Kelly, 624-3543.

The land trust would then transfer the easement to Monterey County.

If the appraisal of the land is accepted by Hill and the county, Leavy said the trust hopes to use Proposition 70 funds to purchase the 3,200-acre easement.

In 1988, California residents voted to allocate $25 million to buy property from Mal Paso Creek to the county's southern boarder that may be viewed from Highway 1. About $10 million remains available for use.

"If accomplished, this would be the largest and most significant effort to protect the coastal viewshed in California and perhaps the nation," Leavy noted. "This incomparable stretch of coast is truly one of the crown jewels of Monterey County."

Hope Raggett was link to 'the old Carmel'

By CRAIG ARNOTT

THE VILLAGE lost one of its genuine links to "the old Carmel," as one of her son's put it, when Hope Raggett, 81, died at Hospice House in Monterey last Thursday.

Mrs. Raggett first became acquainted with the local area in the late 1920s and early 1930s while visiting her older sister who lived in a house on Monte Verde Street. During that time, the Carmel Police Department would regularly dispatch an officer on horseback to the house to check on the welfare of the sisters.

Hope Raggett

Mrs. Raggett went on to teach kindergarten at Sunset School from 1936 through 1939, and served as president of the local branch of Delta Phi Upsilon, the kindergarten national honor society.

For her lunch breaks at the school, a horse would be brought down from the stables on Junipero Street (now home of Bruno's Market) for her to ride to the beach or up and down Ocean Avenue.

"She was a real link to the old Carmel," said her son, Capt. Michael Raggett. "There aren't many like her left."

In 1946, Mrs. Raggett moved to Carmel permanently with her husband, Mark, who operated the dry goods store, Putnam & Raggett (eventually M. Raggett) on Ocean Avenue near San Carlos.

"This was back when you could actually buy real things in Carmel," said Michael of the store, which the family owned until 1978.

Gave a lot back

Mrs. Raggett was extremely active in the community, at times serving as:

- president of Carmel PTA;
- Chairman of the Carmel chapter of the Junior Red Cross;
- president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Women;
- president of the Littlebits chapter of the Children's Home Society;
- president of the Carmel Republican Women's Club (Mrs. Raggett attended the Republican National Convention in 1956);
- president and charter member of Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula Auxiliary;
- trustee emeritus of the Community Hospital Foundation;
- board member of the Monterey County Symphony Guild ("though I don't think she ever attended the symphony," said her son Jon Raggett);
- member of the Beach and Tennis Club, Stillwater Yacht Club, Monterey History & Art Association and Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Mrs. Raggett was born in San Francisco and raised in San Jose, and went on to graduate from San Jose State University in 1936 with a degree in education.

She is survived by her sons, Michael and Jon, both of whom live in Carmel, and by four grandchildren.

Memorial services were held earlier this week for Mrs. Raggett.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to Community Hospital Foundation, Hospice of the Central Coast or the Mark Raggett Sailing Scholarship Fund c/o Stillwater Yacht Club.

What's New at the Carmel Library

Author here Saturday

LESLIE TRYON, a local children's author, will present a special program for young readers at the Harrison Memorial Library's Park Branch at Sixth and Mission at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Come and hear about the adventures of Albert the Goose, the hero of Tryon's picture books. Copies of her most recent book, Albert's Ballgame, will be available for purchase and signing after the program.

Following is a look at this week's recommendations from the adult collection:

■ Sudden Exposure
By Susan Dunlap
Humor and mystery are cleverly combined in the latest Jill Smith mystery set in Berkeley.

■ Rebel Heart
By Mary Lovell
A biography of Jane Digby, the unconventional 19th century aristocrat who threw over the confines of British society to travel the world and ultimately become the wife of an Arabian sheik.

■ Garden Artistry
By Helen Dillon
This delightfully opinionated Irish author tells how to create triumphs out of problems in the garden.

■ The Victorian Home
By Ellen M. Plante
A wonderful tour of contemporary Victorian homes.

■ Edward Weston — Forms of Passion
By Gilles Mora
This new survey, more comprehensive than any other, traces Weston's photographic career from early days until his death in 1958.

And from the children's collection...

■ Oh, Those Harper Girls
By Kathleen Karr
Those uproarious Harper girls will do almost anything to help their daddy save their broken-down West Texas ranch, even if it means robbing a stagecoach.

If you would like to help buy books for the library, send your tax-deductible contribution — large or small — to the Carmel Public Library Foundation, P.O. Box 2042, Carmel, Calif. 93921.

TONI: Timing is right

"There is no humidity. It's dry heat, so it is not so bad."

The timing is right for the Jepsons to leave the Carmel area, now that their son, Pete, is in his second year of college at CSU-Chico.

Also, the CBA chief believes Carmel's business climate is at a promising juncture. She noted two key reasons for the continued well-being of the local business climate;

■ The business and residential communities "are on good terms" and have fostered a spirit of cooperation that has often been lacking.

■ As of the current fiscal year, the City of Carmel has committed to fund a CBA-led destination-marketing program, which by Jepson's opinion is paying huge dividends. The city's $100,000 for the 1995-96 fiscal year is bringing many times more than that in new city revenues, she said.

"I think calendar year 1996 is going to be the best in my five-and-a-half years," Jepson said.

Although surrounded by desert, Cal and Toni will enjoy the resorts' amenities — from golf and tennis to swimming and horseback riding.

And when they return to Carmel as visitors'. "I will be able to do all of the things in this area that I couldn't do because I was too busy or tired," Toni said.

CBA, CV Chamber to mix it up

THE CARMEL Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Carmel Business Association will host a joint mixer from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Rancho Cañada Golf Club, located on Carmel Valley Road one mile east of Highway 1.

Admission for members is $3, non-members $6. Those bringing a raffle prize will be admitted free.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Health benefits for retirees have been shrinking steadily, according to a Government study. Census Bureau data on 23 million retirees age 55 and over show that only 34 percent were covered by employer health plans in 1994, compared to 44 percent in 1988. In 1994, 37 percent of covered retirees had their health insurance premiums fully paid by former employers, down from 42 percent in 1988. In the same period, the median annual premium costs borne by other retirees rose to $960 from $874.

Julian Kanter spent many years as manager of TV stations in New York and Florida and also devoted a lot of time to keeping up with political developments. In 1956, as a hobby, he started collecting tapes of political TV commercials. In 1985 he donated his collection to the University of Oklahoma and became its curator. By the time he left in one '95, the collection held 55,000 commercials made for elections ranging from U.S. presidents to school board trustees. Early examples confirm that negative commercials are not a new phenomenon, Kanter points out.

For the first several miles, Russian training partners Valery Fedotov (left) and Arkady Nikitin ran shoulder to shoulder, stride for stride, until Fedotov broke away.

Big Sur International Marathon

HERE ARE some images of Sunday's 11th running of the Big Sur International Marathon, carried out at the front end of this week's heat wave. Striking were the twin Russian victories – Valery Fedotov among the men, Svetlana Vasilyeva among the woman. Fedotov, who unwittingly plowed through the wrong lane on several occasions, potentially could have his victory yanked from him if a committee disqualifies him. A decision will be handed down Monday.

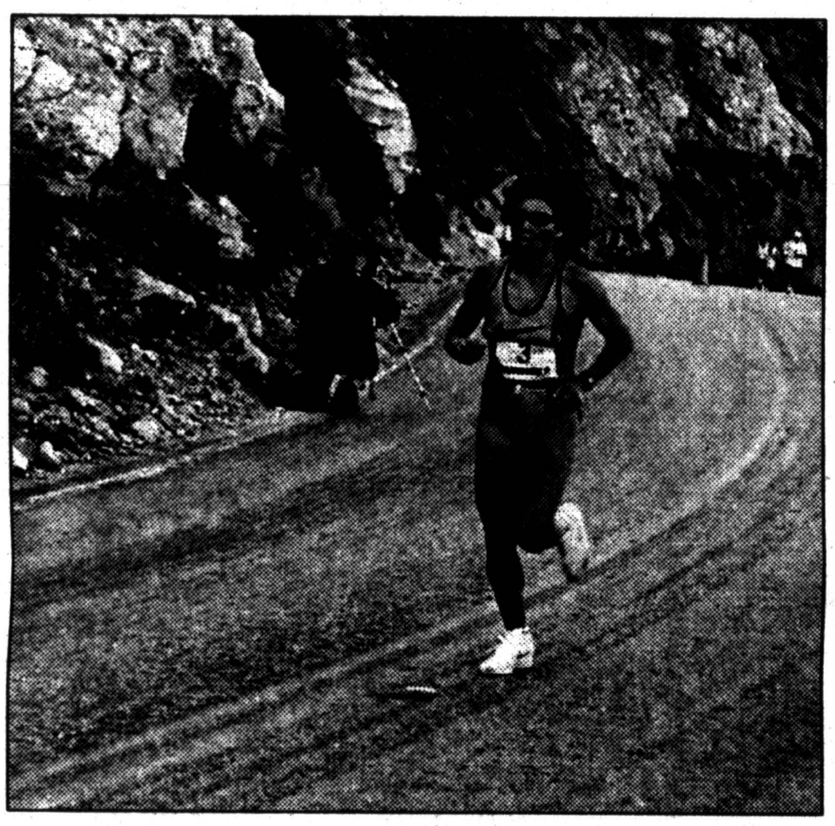
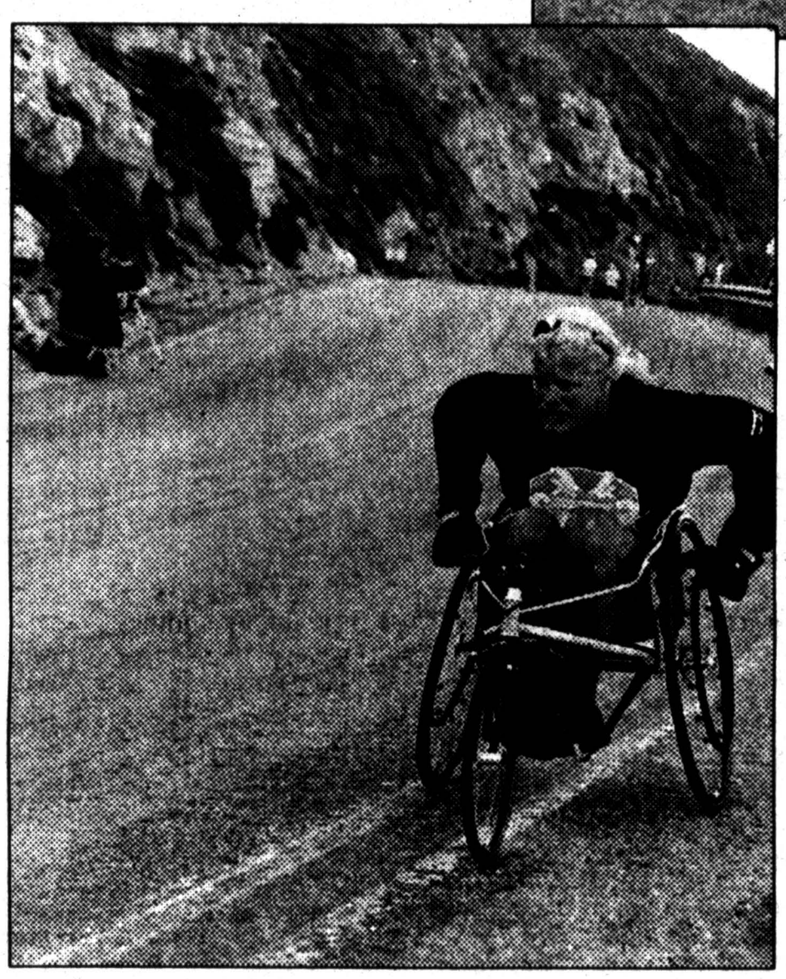
▲ The Big Sur Marathon course is characterized by many steep grades. Fedotov's victory is the subject of a challenge by other runners who observed his unwittingly straying from the proper lane during the curves.



Maria Trujillo of Marina, running her first Big Sur Marathon, finished second in the women's division, with a time of 2:46:49. After the race, she said she underestimated the hills, paying the price with race-long fatigue. "I trained on hills, but not enough," she said.



Randy Caddell of Santa Cruz was the only wheelchair athlete in the event. The 28-year-old finished the 26.2-mile course in 2:33:10.

Svetlana Vasilyvena of Russia, who led for most of the race, won the women's division in a course record.

Mustang's top 2 teams battle to tie

THE ACTION was tense Saturday at Larson Field as two Mustang Division games, including one that was a battle for first place, ended in dead heats. Here's a closer look:

■ MUSTANG (ages 9-10): When the Mustang League's top two teams — Top Line Toys and Payless — tangled on Saturday, expectations were high for a tight game. That came to fruition ... and then some. After six innings, the game was called with the score at 11-11. In the key play, Payless catcher Kyle Johnson tagged out a TLT runner trying to steal home for the game's final out. Matthew Dolly drove in two runs to give TLT a 5-4 advantage at the end of the first inning. Charlie Crisan and Katy Keeley doubled for TLT. In addition to his prowess behind the plate, Johnson cracked a pair of doubles. Danny Oyler went 4-for-4 with a double for PL...

In another game Saturday that ended in a tie, Diamond Dogs and Mission Ranch left the field at 7-7. Andy Abraham's two-run double enabled MR to tie the contest. Jeff Foudy homered for MR...

Diamond Dogs bowed to Payless 9-2 on April 23. Morgan Zealer hit a ground-rule double and Noah McCormack collected two hits for DD. Payless cashed in with two-hit days from Danny Oyler and Kyle Johnson, while Nathan Canepa drove in two runs. Jack Britton (P) turned in another fine performance on the mound. Noah McCormack pitched well for three innings for DD. Frankie Ortega (P) snagged a sharp line drive to end an inning...

Katy Keeley, MacKenzie Davidson and Jason Marian contributed base hits to pace Top Line Toys to a 7-4 victory over Tri-Cal on April 24. Dylan Roddick and Clayton Davis were the top hitters for Tri-Cal. SS Spencer Moran (TC) made a super stop and teammate Daniel Kleinkopf turned a nifty double play...

Eric Moore homered and Ben Baysinger doubled as Remax defeated Mission Ranch 5-1 last Thursday. Matt Feldberg helped the Remax cause with his first single of the season. Colin Ling singled for MR. On defense, Nick Santy's diving catch for RM was spectacular, as was a catch by RM's Travers Newell in center field. Jeff Foudy pitched well for MR...

Ben Baysinger and Thomas Duckett combined for five RBIs in Remax's 9-2 victory over Tri-Cal on Saturday afternoon. Nick Santy was 2-for-2 to help Remax. On the Tri-Cal side, Daniel Kleinkopf and Matt Connelly executed steals of home plate, Dylan Roddick had a base hit and Matt Kerro turned in a solid outing on the mound.

■ BRONCO (ages 11-12): Lemos 76 held off the Black Sox to win 7-5 in an April 23 game. L76's Kyle Breuleux homered, while teammates Ral Powers doubled twice and Andrew Dahl doubled once. Top hitters for the Sox were Alex Short, Joey Aguilar and Alex Katz. Sox pitcher Brian Langslet fanned five over three innings. Max Rieser (L76) turned in a b- game in the field, recording five outs, while Carl Lemos made an outstanding catch...

Copies By The Sea rolled over On The Beach 11-1 last Thursday, winning by the league's 10-run rule. Bin Jonsson and Kenny Kleinkopf led the offensive assault with three hits apiece and a home run. Teammate Robert Jensen (2-for-3) doubled. Notable fielding efforts: A second-inning catch by CF Joe Stoffers (OTB) and a double play in the third inning turned by 2B Gavin Edward and SS Covie Gonzales of OTB...

On Saturday, On The Beach met up Lemos 76 and came away with an 11-7 victory. Kevin Dorey homered and doubled for OTB. Leading hitters for L76 were Alex Heisinger, Eric Carl and John Puccinelli. Luke Perkins was stellar on the mound for OTB. CF Puccinelli made two super catches for Lemos...

Brett George and Erik Shepner combined for a three-hit shutout as New Masters Gallery turned back the Black Sox 8-0 on Saturday morning. Shepner struck out six. The top hitter was Ryan Dawson (NMG), who went 3-for-3 with two doubles and two RBI. Zac Baysinger led the Sox with a 2-for-3 day and a double. Ben Cardenas also doubled for NMG.

■ PINTO (ages 7-8): Solid hitting and adept fielding were evident at the April 24 game between M.L. Stern and Paine Webber. Leading MLS in hits were Kendall Fukimoto, Nathaniel Stevens and Kaitlin Phillips. Quinn Hacker belted a base hit for PW. Other PW highlights: Justin DeMaria had a solid hit to drive in a run, Andrew Call brought in another run with a double and Toby Moen had two great hits and two RBIs. Defensive highlights: Peter Byrne and Nicholas Pinkerton were a formidable MLS infield duo; Matthew Ross was strong for PW; Adam Herhusky (MLS) made a strong throw to first for an out; and Sean Luster and Ben Holber both made beautiful catches for PW...

RG Burgers faced off against Mission Hills Mortgage last Thursday. MHM power hitter Phil Johnston homered. Teammates Joey Parsons and Ryan Knight both doubled twice, while Nick Connelly drove one down the third-base line. RGB batters Justin Vandenberg and Ben Holden ripped base hits. Stephan Gueguen (RGB) came around to score after singling. Matthew Perkins recorded the final out on defense with a fine play for RGB...

There were many stars in Saturday's Kiwanis-Paine Webber game. For Kiwanis, Max Bradley, Roberta Amos and Zachary Shalit sizzled with the bat, while Kevin Sherwood was a whiz on the base paths. Alan Duarte doubled in two teammates, and Andrew Call belted a shot to center for PW. Teammates Chad Vivolo, Brandon Harder and John Callanan all registered run-scoring hits. On defense, Kiwanis 3B Ian Shalit, SS Chase Motley and 1B Ian Hagan excelled. And Cooper Housman caught a fly for Kiwanis caught a pop fly and threw to third to complete a double play. When PW was on defense, Chad Vivolo, Call, Duarte, and Quinn Hacker were standouts...

Later in the day, M.L. Stern and Mission Hills Mortgage hooked up. Chris Moon and Dominique Pacitto doubled for MHM, matched by doubles from Nathaniel Stevens and Peter Byrne of MLS. Samantha Wainscoat (MHM) and Tyler Webb (MLS) collected RBIs. Nicolas Ampero, Jacob Williams and Joey Parsons was consistent on defense for MHM. 2B Adam Herhusky (MLS) wowed the crowd with a tremendous catch.

■ GIRLS' MINOR SOFTBALL (ages 9-10): The Carmel Valley Peppers shut out the Carmel Jaguars 6-0 on April 17. Jaguar highlights: Alexi Connell made a superb double play; Krista Towle played flawlessly at first base; C Anna Wainscott threw out two Peppers trying to steal; and Tara Chandler and Krista Towle were tough on the mound. (Editor's Note: The scorekeeper failed to provide highlights for the Peppers.)...

Carly Dahl doubled and made a fine running running catch of a fly ball to CF for Carmel's Red Hot Chili Peppers during Saturday's contest with Monterey's Camera World.

■ GIRLS' MAJOR SOFTBALL (ages 11-12): The Carmel Stamp & Coin Pitbulls defeated Cornucopia 20-7 on April 22. Pitbulls pitcher Christy Olow allowed only four hits over seven innings for the win. The Pitbulls defense was led by CF Emily Moss, while Valentina Valdez (3-for-4), Katie May (2-for-4, four RBIs) and Amanda Phillips (2-for-4, two RBIs) paced the offense. For Cornucopia, Irene Ramirez and Angel Brown made nice plays in the field. Sarah Smith and Jillian Nemeth led the way at the plate for Cornucopia...

Those same Pitbulls upped their record to 4-0 by defeating the Pacific Grove Seahawks, 3-1, in a tight defensive game last Thursday. Michele Jensen, Valentina Valdez and Sarita Ray knocked in runs for the winners. Katie May and Erin Quinn also figured in key plays on offense. C Valentina Valdez and 2B Amanda Phillips combined to pick off a PG runner.

We are sorry for the error that appeared in the Prime Time! advertising supplement to The Carmel Pine Cone and Monterey Times last week. The article on the Del Monte Assisted Residential Care Home was incorrect, and we apologize for any damage that may have been done to their reputation. This is how the article should have been written:

The Del Monte Assisted Residential Care Home (formerly the Del Monte Rest Home) has been an important part of the Peninsula community since 1955.

Our family's goal for the past four decades has been to provide a safe, friendly, comfortable environment for our guests. At the Del Monte we have a lovely garden setting with pleasant walkways that encourage daily exercise.

We are proud of the fact that most of our professionally trained staff have been with us from 5 to 28 years. (This provides the continuity our older guests need.) We also have a wonderful chef who feeds the body, and a great activities director who feeds the soul.

Please feel free to come and visit anytime.

Padres No. 1 in CCS

AFTER ITS big victories last week over Palma High and Robert Louis Stevenson, the Carmel High School boys varsity baseball team is ranked No. 1 in the Central Coast Section.

The Padres took a 22-2 overall record and 10-1 Mission Trail Athletic League record into Wednesday's game at King City, which was completed after Pine Cone press deadline.

Last Friday's thrilling 10-8 road victory over Palma not only gained redemption against the team that saddled the Padres with their only two losses of the '96 season, but more importantly gave them a two-game lead over the Chieftains and Pacific Grove in the race for first place in the MTAL.

The Padres will try to sew up the league title Friday afternoon when they entertain Alisal, the league's fourth place team at 6-4. First pitch is set for 4 p.m.

Asked about the team's No. 1 ranking in the CCS, Carmel head coach Mike Kelly was realistic.

"It's all pretty nice and flattering, but it doesn't really much," Kelly said. "Anything can happen between now and the beginning of CCS."

The top two teams in the MTAL will be guaranteed berths in the post-season tournament. The first round of games are scheduled for Wednesday, May 15.

■ Next week: Carmel High's baseball team heads into the Central Coast Section playoffs. We'll look at how it got there and what we can expect once it's there.

Illinois-bound Tulua to lead CHS tracksters

By AMIR MASLIYAH
and PATRICK FOUDY

ALTHOUGH ALL the teams in the Mission Trail Athletic League are invited to Friday afternoon's championships at Hartnell College, it will only really matter for both the boys and girls squads from Carmel High, Notre Dame and Palma.

The Palma boys and Carmel girls will bring perfect 10-0 records into the 2 p.m. meet, while Notre Dame girls and the Carmel boys stand at 9-1.

A preview of what to expect Friday took place last week when these prep talents meet in a regularly scheduled meet in Salinas. The Padre girls prevailed with 68 points to Notre Dame's 55 and King City's 49.

The Palma boys, with 67 points, knocked off Carmel (52.5) and King City (39.5).

Seniors Denise Cardamone and Darlene Tulua starred as each won two events. Tulua, who signed a letter of intent Monday for a track scholarship at the University of Illinois, took the shot put and discus as usual with distances of 40-10.5 and 153-4.

The incredibly talented Darlene Tulua announced Monday that she will attend the University of Illinois in the fall. Her discus and shot put records rank her third and 12th in the nation, respectively.

Cardamone won the mile and two-mile race with times of 5:35.5 and 12:51, respectively. She also earned valuable points, finishing second in the 880, an event she doesn't normally run.

The boys were led by the strong performances of juniors Ben Cook, Jacob Saxton and Ryan Travaille. Cook took first in the 440 at 52.7 and took the high jump with an intimidating 6-4. Cook also took third in the 200.

Saxton finished first in the 200 (24.1) and finished second in the 100 and triple jump. Travaille won the 300 hurdles (42.7) and placed second in the long jump.

Stevenson golfers, netters shine in MTAL title action

By JOHN DAVI

OVERCOMING A disappointing loss to Pacific Grove High last week, the Robert Louis Stevenson boys golf team topped the rest of the league Monday in the Mission Trail Athletic League Championships at Rancho Cañada West to win the team title outright.

The win advances the Pirates to the Central Coast Section Regionals, next Wednesday at The Golf Club at Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley.

Led by freshmen Steven Sparolini and David Addison, who each carded rounds of 77, the Pirate team, which finished its first-place season at 9-1, came in at 393 on the par-71 course, 12 strokes ahead of second-place Palma.

■ BOYS TENNIS

It was a banner day for the Stevenson entrants in the MTAL singles/doubles championships on Tuesday. Nick Garrone captured the singles title, stopping Austin Poland of Carmel 6-0, 6-1 in the finals, while the Chris Chatham-Matt Chatham brother duo took the doubles crown by the same straight-set score over Rishi Goel and Tejal Patel of York School.

Last Friday, with a 4-3 victory over Pacific Grove, the Pirate tennis team notched its 16th consecutive MTAL championship and sealed a perfect 12-0 record.

Winning for the Pirates in their final league match were the top four singles players. Chris Chatham, finishing up a fine four-year career in the top spot, breezed past his Breaker counterpart 6-1, 6-0, while Robin Tsang, Kelly Lee and Alda Mostofi all posted easy two-set wins as well.

■ BASEBALL/SOFTBALL

With two games remaining in league play, the Stevenson baseball and softball teams seem to be going in opposite directions.

The girls, currently 9-2 and in third place, are making a run for CCS, while the boys, at 3-8 and in sixth place, are awaiting the end of the season. Both teams showed their current states in last Friday's King City matchups.

The girls blanked their fourth-place Mustang counterparts 8-0 behind an Amy Barker three-hitter. Sophomore Shyamala White doubled, tripled and homered, knocking in three runs.

The boys, who were even in the standings with visiting King City heading into the game, led 4-2 after five innings. King City, however, erupted for 10 runs on five hits, three errors and two walks in the sixth, en route to a 12-7 victory.

■ GIRLS SOFTBALL

Coming off the heels of a 17-1 defeat by the first-place Notre Dame Spirits, the Padres are looking to get back on the victory path versus York at 4 p.m. today.

Despite the lopsided loss against Notre Dame, the Padres haven't lost focus.

"I'm hoping we can regroup and finish out the season strong with some wins," said senior utility player Patty Boyd.

As for Notre Dame? "They're a tough team with a lot of talent," said senior Andra Faverty.

The Spirits are atop the MTAL with a 11-0 record and a 20-3 overall mark.

— A.M.

■ SWIMMING & DIVING

After dunking Robert Louis Stevenson, 102-83, in a meet last Friday, the 7-2 Padres look for more of the same when they pay a visit to Alisal High for a 3:30 p.m. meet.

Against RLS, Kent Wehde and Omer Baristrian continued to cause double trouble for MTAL foes, as both were twin winners and contributors to triumphant relay teams.

Wehde easily won the 50 free with a 23.41 time and also coasted to a victory in the 100 breast (1:03.46). Baristrian picked up his medals in the 200 individual medley (2:13.74) and the 100 free with a 52.13 time.

The Wehde-Baristrian duo teamed up with sophomores Sasha Vorobiov and Eliot Byrd en route to victories in the 200 medley relay (1:49.30) and the 400 free relay (3:38.89).

The fledgling 200 free relay team, made up of freshman twins Adam and Erik Struve, sophomore Keith Moon and Chase Mahoney, turned in a key win with a 1:42.46 effort.

Sophomore Matt Borek picked up 157 points in taking the diving competition.

Stanford, Santa Clara to duel in benefit soccer game here May 11

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

TWO OF the top NCAA Div. I soccer teams in the country — Stanford University and Santa Clara University — will face off in a benefit game at 4 p.m. Saturday, May 11 at Carmel Middle School's lower field.

Proceeds from the game will go to the Carlos Zarate Field Fund. Donations will be requested for admission.

Santa Clara's successful program produced an NCAA Div. I champion in both 1989 and 1991.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Michael Jones, event organizer, at 659-4100.

Solution for Flanders

Dear Editor:

After reading a few months ago about the Flanders Property Task Force, I found out from Carmel City Hall where it's located and took a look.

It turns out to be an interesting old residence — ivy-covered, with unusual roof tile — on a quiet, wooded site with a magnificent view of native woods and a peek at the Mission and Monastery Beach. It's located essentially across Rio Road and up the hill — via the Mission Trail Park trails — from the Carmel Mission.

The main physical obstacle to its reuse is access for visitors. Its driveway is off Hatton Road, a quiet residential street, and it has virtually no parking, or potential for any additional since it is on a substantial slope. So where would visitors park?

The Rio Road access to Mission Trail Park is a virtually flat area adjacent to a major thoroughfare, and it's directly across the street from the existing Mission parking lot. It's an ideal location for a modest parking area. Plus, the Mission is an excellent potential source of Mansion visitors (and at times it could use more parking).

How do these visitors get from there to the Mansion? They could walk on the already existing trails, or (if disabled or tired or in bad weather) ride there on a four-wheel drive electric shuttle vehicle — no noise, no pollution.

Why would they visit the Flanders Mansion? To enjoy a simple Asilomar-style meal, either in conjunction with a visit to the Mission or while enjoying the Park itself. The setting is rustic, historic and beautiful.

The existing driveway would be used for service only, minimizing the traffic impact on the Hatton Road neighbors. The facilities could be informal, similar to Asilomar's dining halls, appropriate to the Mission neighborhood and keeping capital expenditures low.

The state runs Asilomar and the Carmel Mission; perhaps they would assist in the project. The Mission Ranch and its restaurant, fitting into the neighborhood rather well, are a good precedent. As such, a zoning change for the Mansion should be possible.

If successful, the venture would be an appropriate source of income for Carmel.

Encore for Garden Show!

Dear Editor:

I want to congratulate the Pebble Beach Co. on the recent Garden Show (April 12-14).

I attended two of the workshops on Sunday, as well as toured the incredible garden displays and viewed the tabletop settings in Casa Palermo done by local hostesses.

I especially enjoyed shopping in the Marketplace, and was amazed by the tremendous amount of effort that each retail shop put into designing the exhibits and displays.

I've heard only compliments and praise from other members of the community who attended the event.

Thank you, and please schedule it again for next year!

A chilling day in the land of bright lights

By GEORGE READING

George Reading, a 44-year TV news veteran, had been the weekend anchor at KCCN.

"SHOULD I pray for you?"

The voice was warm. Her face was concerned.

"Thank you," I smiled.

I have spent my life in mass communications. None of it, though, was more important than that simple exchange with a concerned stranger on a downtown Monterey street corner.

It happened the day after the Draconian takeover of KCCN-TV, the day after an entire staff was fired, its news voice on the Monterey peninsula silenced. It was a simple human communication.

"Are you all right?" was what she was asking. I was. And my colleagues at KCCN would be too. But the industry, for me, would never be the same.

The woman with the warm voice had been cheated. Cheated by an industry that is licensed to operate in the public trust. The TV voice she just lost does not belong to the cable company back in Pennsylvania that still holds its license.

It does not belong to Ackerley Communications in Seattle, which now operates both KCBA-TV and KCCN-TV. It belongs to her, to the people of this community.

Picture of reality

In my 44-year career in TV news — from New York, Boston, Chicago and Washington, D.C. to Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and now, in retirement, Monterey — I have always believed it was a journalist's obligation to create a picture of reality in which a person could intelligently deal with a changing world.

An important picture of reality disappeared Wednesday, April 24, at 3 p.m. for the Monterey Peninsula when the KCCN staff was dismissed peremptorily and its 5 p.m. news turned into a brief Orwellian scroll that flashed a silent message across Monterey TV sets — "No local news."

No explanation. No why. No nothing.

Only three months earlier, Ackerley had filed a protest when it thought a competing station group was going to purchase KCCN under a local management agreement. Ackerley's lawyers complained to the Federal Communications Commission that such a deal between two competitors violated FCC rules: "A classic example of exactly the types of 'multiple relationships' the commission is concerned about."

How does Ackerley now justify doing exactly what it earlier protested was a violation of FCC rules? "You've got me there," Ackerley spokesperson Dan Evans told the Monterey County Herald.

Furthermore, Ackerley would have us believe that the KCBA takeover was the only way to save KCCN.

"We don't believe that a company could have come in and run it as a stand-alone (station) and been successful," Evans said in that same interview.

An independent voice

What Ackerley and Harron Communications didn't tell the public is that there were other broadcasters who were convinced it would be profitable as a stand-alone — broadcasters who offered more than Harron paid for it (KMST) in 1993; broadcasters who intended to keep KCCN in Monterey as an independent voice.

What little information Ackerley was relaying to local journalists, however, was more than it was telling its own viewers. KCBA never carried the story of its takeover of KCCN that day. It carried the closure of a Wrigley plant in Santa Cruz, but not the closure of KCCN, Central Coast News.

But it didn't see fit to carry a word about the layoff of an entire staff of 70 or so people — nothing about the corporate takeover that moved an independent news voice, licensed to the City of Monterey, to Salinas.

It has been estimated that television is the sole source of news for more than 80 percent of Americans. Two-thirds of the English-language TV stations in the Monterey-Salinas-Santa Cruz market now speak with one editorial voice. It's the same voice that censored the story of its takeover of KCCN.

More than lost jobs

Unlike Wrigley, what is at risk in the Monterey TV takeover is ultimately more important than the lost jobs: namely, a competitive news voice where the politics of the marketplace do not dictate what the public gets to see.

I hope the woman with the warm voice will get this prayer answered — that what happened on April 24 at KCCN will be reversed by the Federal Communications Commission ... that the Monterey Peninsula will get its independent TV voice back ... and this takeover will turn out to be just what it's felt like all along — a very bad Fellini movie.

Otherwise, we may need to pray for Democracy's First Amendment.

A TV journalist since 1954, George Reading retired to Monterey in 1993 where he worked part-time at KCCN and was the anchor of the weekend newscast until April 24. He was a former anchor at KMST-TV (now KCCN), from 1987 to 1990. His career has included TV anchor stints in Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Diego. Of the current situation at KCCN, Reading suggests readers contact Roy Stewart, Chief of Mass Media, Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20554.

MEASURE H

the following insights about Measure H:

■ The rezoning has not created the proliferation of tourist-serving businesses many feared. In fact, it has encouraged the opposite trend — more community-serving businesses.

Roseth's report at last month's council meeting was heartening to all sides of the Measure H debate. He compared the commercial district of 1993 to that of 1995, and found the following:

— The number of clothing stores are down from 85 to 70.

Is this the doing of Measure H or merely "market forces?" No one can say for sure.

— Shops selling home furniture and equipment has risen from 37 to 48.

These types of businesses are considered community-serving and worth encouraging.

— Antique stores are up from 14 to 17, and arts and crafts stores have increased from seven to 13.

These establishments used to be permitted only on Ocean Avenue and the rest of the central-commercial (CC) zone, but Measure H now allows them in the outlying service-commercial (SC) zone as well.

SPECIAL REPORT

Toni Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association, said this increase has less to do with the rezoning than with "national trends."

— Jewelry stores are down from 34 to 32.

Measure H has put a limit of 34 jewelry stores in town, so it is a surprise the number hasn't stayed at 34. "This shows the market may not be driving jewelry stores in Carmel as hard as we originally thought," Roseth said.

— The number of repair service shops is up from five to six; personal services from 47 to 56. These are more examples of businesses catering mainly to locals.

— Real estate businesses are fewer, from 33 to 30. Many council members took heart in this development.

Roseth was reluctant to find trends "based upon marginal increases and decreases." But Mayor Ken White, one of the original boosters of Measure H, said, "I was pleasantly surprised at this shift of businesses. I am very pleased to see what looks like more resident-serving businesses.

Likewise, Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac said, "Mom and pop stores seem to have been helped"

Still, there are at least a couple of discouraging changes. No movie theaters where there were two; one bookstore in place of two.

■ The changes to downtown character over the past few years have had more to do with the "corporatization" of Carmel — the arrival of chain stores — than the rezoning.

According to Roseth, the influence of Measure H is slight compared to that of market forces.

Which shops in Carmel are replicas of others found in malls throughout the nation? Late last fall, Carmel Senior Planner Rick Tooker said there has been a 30 to 35 percent increase in corporate and chain-store businesses in town compared with two years before.

This trend has to do with the high cost of rents in the downtown, where commercial space sells for $4 to $6 a square foot, topped on the Peninsula only by Cannery Row.

■ Not everyone is happy about Measure H's streamlining provisions.

Art galleries, jewelry stores and restaurants can go into business without time-consuming and expensive planning commission review. But did the rezoning go too far in striving for efficiency?

It was Livingston who last month requested a status report on Measure H because she is concerned some projects are getting approved too quickly.

At its April 2 meeting, the council agreed to look into requiring commission review for new restaurant requests. Were this requirement in place, the recent installation of Il Fornaio at the Pine Inn would have undergone review, as would have the conversion of Da Vinci's coffee house into Crosby's Old Carmel Grill, a full-line restaurant.

"It is too late to review these two now, but we can make corrections for the future," Livingston said. "Any use that is going to have a significant impact on our village should go through the planning commission."

Measure H has not changed the requirement for commission review of all new exterior design changes. The council also paved the way for "more complete design guidelines for storefront remodels."

Livingston said better guidelines might have toned down the appearance of the newly renovated Paradise building at Ocean and Dolores.

A full decade may be needed before a fair judgment on Measure H can be made, but the council stands ready to make modifications along the way. As White said, "Zoning is always a work-in-progress."

Clearly, a zoning revision is rarely a complete boon or disaster. Measure H is no exception.

Churches set rummage sales

COMMEMORATION CONTROVERSY

Not all are pleased about site for statue honoring Ed Ricketts

■ Friend of the late marine biologist doesn't like the idea of the monument being placed where Ricketts' car was hit by a train, causing his death

By BETH PENNEY

ON THE evening of May 8, 1948, a man neatened his home office on Ocean View Avenue near the Hovden Cannery and drove toward the other end of New Monterey to buy a steak at his favorite market.

He drove along Ocean View and turned up Drake Street to get to Lighthouse Avenue. The Del Monte Express was still running then, even though the sardine industry, which had flourished in the years before and during the war, had started to decline, and nowhere near as many sardines were shipped out of town on the railway that ran parallel with Ocean View, the street that contained the many huge fish canneries.

The man's car was an old one, and it was noisy. From between the two cannery buildings that flanked Drake Street at Wave, he couldn't hear the train as it roared toward Pacific Grove, the last stop on the line. He pulled out in front of the oncoming engine from between the obscuring buildings and was broadsided. He was taken to Monterey Hospital and died of his injuries on May 11, three days before his 51st birthday.

The driver who died as a result of those injuries was marine biologist Edward Flanders Ricketts, a veteran of two world wars, father of two children, a long-time local resident, and supplier of marine specimens to schools and laboratories across the country. He is perhaps better remembered as John Steinbeck's friend, drinking buddy and fellow philosopher immortalized as "Doc" in Steinbeck's Cannery Row and Sweet Thursday. Now, Ed Ricketts is the subject of further commemoration, and of controversy.

The plan

In March, the Cannery Row Foundation started a drive to raise funds for a memorial to Ed Ricketts, in the form of a bronze statue that is scheduled to be erected at the site of Ricketts' accident.

The Monterey Plaza Hotel has already presented the Foundation with a $5,000 donation. The first 50 donors of more than $1,000 will receive a limited edition, signed bronze "mockette" of the sculpture, which was conceived by Pacific Grove artist and sculptor Jesse Corsaut.

On Monday, May 13, the first of the mini-sculptures will be presented to the donors at a reception hosted by the Foundation in the Dolphin Room at the Monterey Plaza Hotel at 6 p.m. Michael Hemp, the Foundation's Development Director, said that "we're very, very encouraged" about the response to the fundraising drive.

Currently, the intersection at Wave and Drake is unmarked, except for a length of track, several benches, and a railroad crossing signal which unfortunately wasn't there in 1948. "We expect it to become one of the most photographed locations on Cannery Row" after the statue is erected, Hemp said.

Hemp admitted that Ricketts "would have been embarrassed by the lionization" of his memory, "but that's not a good reason not to let the public know what happened" at the corner of Drake and Wave nearly half a century ago.

Jesse Corsaut, a long-time Pacific Grove resident, was happy to take on the job of modeling the life-size half-statue. Corsaut remembers meeting Steinbeck at a party once, but he never knew either Steinbeck or Ricketts, although he has always had a keen interest in Steinbeck's work.

After he received the assignment, Corsaut said, he read more about Ricketts himself, including Ricketts' Between Pacific Tides. It appealed to Corsaut because his father had been a scientist.

Corsaut now has a deep appreciation for Ricketts. "I saw a lot of similarities between him and my father," he said, noting that the elder Corsaut held degrees in horticulture and biology. "It gave me kind of a tie-in."

It was Corsaut's idea to expand the project from just the subject's head to a rendering from the waist up. "Originally, they wanted just a head," he said. "I told them, 'a head just won't make this.'"

Corsaut, who also sculpted President Clinton's inaugural medal for the Hoffman Mint in Monterey, is satisfied with the resulting work, of a man in a jacket holding a starfish. "I thought this expressed him better," he said. "He always wore a little magnifying glass and a pen, so he could take notes," Corsaut explained, and these items are meticulously rendered in the sculpture.

When asked what Ricketts would have thought of the statue, Corsaut agreed with Hemp. "I think he would have thought it was presumptuous," he said. "But I think this is appropriate."

The objection

The late artist and writer Bruce Ariss noted in his memoir, Inside Cannery Row, that Steinbeck, who was in New York when Ricketts was killed and barely made it to the West Coast in time for the funeral, said, "I'm sure Ed wouldn't go to his funeral either, if he could help it."

The question again arises: How would a man like Ricketts, who certainly did not stand on any kind of ceremony, feel about having a bronze statue erected in his memory, especially at the site where he had absentmindedly pulled in front of a train that had run past his front door at the same time every day for nearly 20 years?

'I am really as near angry as I ever have been about someone glorifying that crash site. I am never going to go see (the statue).'

— Jean Ariss,
Friend of the late Ed Ricketts

Possibly no one knew Steinbeck and Ricketts as well as did Bruce Ariss, who died in September of 1994, and his wife Jean. In fact, their friend Ed Ricketts introduced them to the young and virtually unknown John Steinbeck.

The Arisses traveled to Baja California with both men in 1936, four years before the trip Steinbeck and Ricketts took that resulted in The Log from the Sea of Cortez.

Although Jean Ariss approves of Corsaut's rendering of Ricketts, calling it "pleasant — more like him than any of the others," she is opposed to the plan to erect the statue at the crash site. Memorializing the site where Ricketts was hit by the train, she said, is "macabre and bizarre.

"I am really as near angry as I ever have been about someone glorifying that crash site," Ariss said. "I am never going to go see it."

According to Michael Hemp, Ariss's input has been instrumental in making other changes to the Ricketts memorial plans. The words "Crash Site" were removed from the name of the project at her suggestion, and the date of the presentation of the miniature sculptures to the donors was moved from May 8, the date of the accident, to May 13, which is closer to Ricketts' May 14 birthday.

Plans set for arts complex at CSUMB

By DEBORAH SHARP

AS THE campus of California State University at Monterey Bay is developing, so is a plan for a regional arts center there. On March 18 the partnership between CSUMB and the Monterey Bay Center for the Arts (MBCA) became official.

Even before Fort Ord was closed, MBCA, which grew out of a task force appointed by then-supervisor Sam Karas in 1989, discussed potential sites for an arts center with the Department of Defense.

CSUMB has maintained an active interest in the arts center plan and formalized its commitment to the plan on March 18 when MBCA Board Chairman Robert Sageman and CSUMB President Peter Smith signed an agreement forming a Community-University Joint Planning Group.

The group is responsible for planning the design, financing, construction, and operation of a regional joint use arts center, scheduled to open at the turn of the century.

John Light, a founding director of MBCA and the acting Joint Planning Staff Director, is "feeling very confident about the partnership."

Light explains that current funding from a number of private sources is exclusively for the planning stage of the project: a fund-raising feasibility study, a mar-

Cars can be our friends or foes

HAVE YOU ever noticed how cars have personalities?

I was reflecting on this the other day as I was coaxing the old Ford Van to hang in there until the next gas station.

Reflections

By Patrick Whitehurst

It's amazing, isn't it, how some cars can be real Sweethearts and others can be monstrous, cantankerous Stinkers.

A Sweetheart is the one that's running on fumes, the "You Are In Deep Doo-Doo" lights are blinking, suggesting to us that we are driving on borrowed time, and yet somehow, the old bus squeezes out that extra mile to get us to a gas station. I love a car like that.

The Stinker is the car that when fully gassed, has a brand new battery under the hood, a gleaming paint job and looks like it's going 100 miles per hour when it's parked, squats in the driveway and says, "Who, me?" when you turn the key.

No clicks, no reasons, no excuses. "This just isn't my day to get up and go, fella. Try me tomorrow . . . maybe," it says.

This is not just a Stinker, it's an Automotive Primadonna . . . more terrible than your worst out-of-gas-in-the-Mojave nightmares.

Subtle psychology

I have owned some Stinkers. I have talked very tough to them, invoking the wrath of God and threatening the ministrations of an epileptic Mr. Goodwrench to deal with their fickle psyches. It doesn't work.

I have tried subtle psychology, like "If you don't move, you suffering sack of sick pistons, I will leave you on a side street in mid-town New York and do you know what happens to cute little cars left in mid-town New York? They are attacked, abused and then they are cannibalized! Do you hear me you stupid car . . . cannibalized!"

That didn't work either.

So my advice if you own a Stinker is to sell it, junk it or give it to your worst enemy.

Several years ago I owned an MG Roadster. It was heaven on wheels. It purred. It roared. It gurgled gasoline-scented endearments whenever I approached it. I swear that little car had a soul.

Aloud we confess our sins within the secret confines of our car . . . our private confessional booth.

"Now, Patrick m'boy there's a sharp curve ahead," it would whisper as we tooled south toward Big Sur. "Never you mind Patrick, I'll take care of this for you." And miraculously that little jewel would drop a gear without me even touching the clutch and hug a tight twist in the road without a murmur from the tires.

And when some zillion-horse-powered gas guzzler began tailgating us . . . kavoooom! We were out of there and Mr. Gas Guzzler faded into the distance behind us.

Have you ever wondered why cars seem to become an extension of ourselves? It's not a mystery. It's because we talk to them. We do, you know.

"Tough day at work, boss?" the car asks when the day is over.

We close the door of the steel and upholstered confessional and spill our guts.

"Tough day? You bet your sweet muffler it was a tough day!"

Aloud we confess our sins within the secret confines of our car . . . our private confessional booth.

At the stop light when a lady crosses the street, the old car indulges us and lets us ogle youth and beauty through its broad eyes. It may even burble approval deep within its well-tuned carburetor.

Automotive intimacy

Our cars become close to us because only those few who listen without reproach can become truly intimate with our inner selves.

I wonder if cars feel betrayed when we have to sell them or trade them. I wonder if they feel rejection. I hope not, and let's pray that they aren't vindictive.

"Listen Old Buddy. I hate to do this to you, but times change, you know. I promise I'll keep my mouth shut about your kinky fuel pump hangups if you won't tell anybody about my lascivious Sophia Loren daydreams. Deal?"

So far, all my old cars, even the Stinkers, have kept my secrets. And I have kept theirs.

Nonprofits to raise money for themselves during The Human Race on May 11

LOCAL NONPROFIT organizations have the opportunity to raise money by participating in The Human Race, the Volunteer Center's 10K walk-a-thon that is Monterey County's largest collaborative fund-raiser.

Last year, 1,000 walkers representing 117 nonprofits raised nearly $100,000, all of which remained in the community. Participating nonprofits are guaranteed a 75 percent return on every dollar they collect.

The course runs from Monterey High School to Lovers Point and back.

PEOPLE IN THE ARTS

Bowmans getting used to life after Fireside Gallery

By DEBORAH SHARP

"ART IS soul food, not a luxury."

So says Dorothy Bowman, recently retired owner and operator of the former Fireside Gallery in the Pantile Court on Dolores Street in Carmel.

This is the philosophy that she and her husband Jack have followed as they've pursued careers in the visual arts and raised their two talented children. It's the philosophy that sustains them still as they cope with Dorothy's blindness, the result of a stroke she suffered more than two and a half years ago.

The Bowmans, whose family histories incorporate such famous American names as Senator Thomas Hart Benton and the Randolphs and Carters of Virginia, met in Detroit and lived in Kansas City where Dorothy was a package designer for Russell Stover Candies.

But Jack, who loved Detroit "because of its dynamics," declared he wouldn't live in Kansas City and brought his wife to San Francisco, a city he had become familiar with during World War II. Dorothy sees the move as a curious twist of fate: her ancestor, Senator Benton, was responsible for the homestead act that opened California for settlement.

The Bowmans soon moved to Los Angeles to attend the Art Center College of Design and pursue careers that laid the foundation for the work they would continue in Carmel. Dorothy became cultural director for the Los Angeles Parks and Recreation Department, and Jack became the art consultant for Forest Lawn, "a most wonderful job, but I wanted to paint all the time."

So while they were in L.A., the Bowmans dreamed about having a gallery in Carmel. On a vacation to the Peninsula in 1970 they learned that Carmel's fledgling Sunset Cultural Center needed a new director. Dorothy applied and got the job.

A year later, when changes in staffing at Sunset occurred, the Bowmans were free to realize their dream. They began their ownership of the Fireside Gallery, which Dorothy managed, and Jack became an illustrator for historical publications.

Dorothy and Jack Bowman spend more time at home since closing their Fireside Gallery.

Dedicated to artists

For 24 years the Fireside Gallery was exactly what the Bowmans wanted it to be, a gallery dedicated to artists — both renowned and unknown — whom they believed in.

"There are many painters, but few artists," Jack tells Peninsula. "There are painters all over the country just duplicating each other. After working 30, 40 years you might become an artist."

"We had a high regard for what we were doing," Dorothy chimes in. "We held our standards high. I might succumb to an artist (who didn't meet those standards), but Jack would say that wasn't what we wanted. He added a touch of class!"

In the early days the Bowmans sought out plein aire watercolorists, like Carolyn Lord and muralist Millard Sheets. Local artist Alison Stilwell Cameron (daughter of General Joe Stilwell) helped out by offering to teach classes in watercolor at the gallery. "It was a way to survive," remembers Dorothy.

When the market became saturated with watercolors, the Bowmans branched out to other artists, like sculptor Douglas Purdy and oil painter T. M. Nicholas.

In her day to day work at the gallery, Dorothy educated her customers so they could become more knowledgeable about art.

"My husband used to say, 'I believe you'd give (a painting) away!'" she says. "We weren't just merchandising. In this life you either touch lives for good or evil. We touched a lot of lives, both artists and clients."

Recently a man from Michigan who had bought several paintings at the Fireside Gallery called Dorothy to say how much he and his wife still loved the paintings she had sold them.

One day a couple of years ago, the Bowmans were following their usual routine: Dorothy was at the gallery checking an artist in, and Jack was at home painting.

"To this day he doesn't know why," says Dorothy, "but Jack laid his brush down and came to the gallery," to find that Dorothy had become ill.

They went to her doctor, who immediately sent her to the hospital. She was in the midst of a simultaneous heart attack and stroke, and the stroke resulted in cortical blindness.

Keeping on

A small amount of Dorothy's sight returned. She can distinguish colors and shapes, but what she sees has no form. Nonetheless, the Bowmans kept the gallery open for the past two and a half years, and Dorothy continued to manage it ably.

But the world of art and galleries has changed significantly in the last 20 years. To a large extent art has become big business, and the Bowmans, both past the age of retirement, feel it is no longer possible to maintain the Fireside Gallery the way they did when life in Carmel was simpler and less commercial. So they have closed the gallery.

How are they coping with the changes in their lives?

CHS teacher promotes careers in the arts by bringing artists to school

By MARGOT PETTIT NICHOLS

A YOUNG Carmel High School teacher has instituted a program bringing professional artists from the community into the school to introduce students to the concept of the arts as a career.

Art instructor Maggie Bevier conceived the Guest Artist Series last year in an effort to introduce visual and performing arts students to "real artists in the real world."

One artist a month has made a volunteer visit to the CHS campus since September, and from 50 to 80 students have signed up for each event.

Visitors to Bevier's classroom have included:

- Jazz musician Kenny Stahl, who performed with seven types of flutes;
- Rick Harper, of Harper Productions, who produced and directed, in conjunction with The National Gallery of Art, the Academy Award winning computer graphics film Masters of Illusion. He spoke on computer design and painting;
- Sculptor Eleen Auvil, who showed slides of her sculptures and spoke of The Monterey County High School Sculpture Competition, of which she is a co-founder;
- Quiltmaker/designer Mary Parsons, who lectured on quiltmaking and textiles;
- Fred Holmes, director of Hanson Gallery, who spoke of the business end of art and encouraged students to show their work to galleries;
- Ceramicist Pam Heneks, who discussed sculpting and ceramic-making.

"Some of our guest artists have degrees in their field, some are self-taught, but all are accomplished and successful in their own professions," Bevier said. "I wanted to show that there are people who love what they do, and the relationship between the arts and professional arts.

"We are encouraging dance students to hear visual artists speak of their art form, and drama students to hear musicians so that they are able to perceive a sense of connection within the arts," she continued. "They find that the same terminology translates from one art form to another, and that the same sets of judgment calls are employed. Our guests are bright lights for young minds."

The visiting artists offer suggestions and information concerning career paths, and to what they attribute their own success.

Bevier, who is in her fourth year as an art instructor, has a degree in art and a teaching credential from Humboldt State University. She is a watercolorist who is now "thinking of going back into oils because they challenge me."

Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club sets international theme for May 11 show

PENINSULA STAFF REPORT

THE CARMEL-by-the-Sea Garden Club presents "A Pageant of Flags," a floral and garden show, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 11 in Crespi Hall at Carmel Mission. Admission is free.

With this show, the club, a member of the Garden Club of America, makes a departure from its more familiar flower show format of horticulture and flower arranging.

Instead, this show is arranged in several different classes, and within each class horticulture and flower arrangement are combined. Further, each class is dedicated to a particular country of the world, in order to heighten interest in these cultures and add to the viewer's cultural knowledge.

The California Rodeo in Salinas has lent the club its flags which are used in the "Pageant of Flags" that opens the Rodeo each year.

The event will also feature a "Gardener's Corner" gift boutique. Eighth-graders from Junipero Serra School will serve refreshments.

Parking is available in the Rio Park parking lot adjacent to the Mission Ranch tennis club.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club was formed in 1979 by a group of women who shared a love of gardening. Over the years the interest and activities of the club have expanded and now include civic improvement, conservation, environmental education, flower arrangement and horticulture.

The club became a member of the Garden Club of America in 1986 and has held flower shows since 1979. As a member of the national club, judges from other chapters of the club serve as judges at the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter's garden shows, including the May 11 event. Judging takes place in the afternoon on May 10, so that those who attend the show can see the winners.

High school jazz competition unveils young names to watch

By JOHN DETRO
Peninsula Jazz Critic

THE 26TH annual edition of the Monterey Jazz Festival's statewide high school competition sounded numerous sweet notes April 27 and 28 at the Monterey Fairgrounds, including more victories than usual for Peninsula players, the first young star still on the middle school level, and the announcement of major corporate sponsorship beginning next year.

"I'm happy that so many local musicians made it to the top spots," said MJF Education Coordinator Stella Le Pine. "Our clinicians (professional jazz musicians who help teach the teen-agers) have given them a lot of personal attention through school visits and the Monterey County Honors Band."

The first audition cassettes come in from schools and are judged by jazz educators at North Texas State University. The big bands, combos and vocal groups invited to compete are judged at the fairgrounds by such clinicians as Bill Berry, Bruce Forman, Tee Carson, Madeline Eastman, Jack Nimitz, Rebecca Parris and Gene Puerling. Prizes include scholarships and cash awards to the winning music departments.

Topping the big bands was Ballard High School from Fresno, followed by Rio Americano High (Sacramento) and Santa Barbara High. Best combo: Los Angeles County School for the Arts.

Vocal units: Folsom High School Jazz Choir, San Luis Obispo High Gold, Mt. Pleasant High Singers (San Jose).

Winners will appear during the 39th yearly MJF on Sept. 20-21-22.

Individual efforts

Peninsula students scored well Sunday during individual auditions for this year's MJF All-Star Big Band. Thus they became eligible for more scholarships and the annual jazz tour of Japan in July and August.

Local winners:

- Baritone sax: Kasey Heiland, Monterey High School. Alternate: Megan Kent, Monterey High. (Alternates replace those who may not be able to attend the tour of Japan.)

Heiland, a senior, was playing tenor sax when he won a $1,000 scholarship to Boston's Berklee School of Music. Kent won an "outstanding soloist" award in big band.

- Trumpet: Eric Telford, Pacific Grove High. Alternate: Emi Terasawa, York School.
- Trombone: Vince Keenan, Pacific Grove High School. Alternate: Daniel Bebermeyer, Monterey High.

Not to be denied

Piano: He's 13 and could not be denied, judges said. Milton Fletcher of King Middle School in Seaside became the first student on that level to make the MJF All-Star Big Band. He was deemed eligible because he will be at Monterey High in the fall. "This young man has large talent," Le Pine said. "He'll surprise and please a lot of experienced listeners."

Finally, MJF spokesperson Paul Fingerote announced that See's Candy will become "a major sponsor" of the high school competition next year. The company has been a sponsor for many seasons in San Francisco Bay Area and Monterey Bay Area jazz radio.

"We're not giving out figures at this time," Fingerote added, "but the word 'major' is accurate."

Inspiration

Interestingly, 16-year-old baritone saxist Kent said she was inspired to participate due to the MJF All-Star Big Band work done two years ago by MHS trumpeter Tanya Darby, now in the jazz program at Manhattan School of Music.

"I love the quality of teaching at Monterey High," Kent said. "(Instructor) Robbie Stange gives us a lot, (clinician) Jack Nimitz is a great musician, and my mother's really supportive. And when I saw Tanya at the festival, I realized I could play this music.

"I was in middle school when I saw her. The whole scene captivated me. I think music will be my major in college. I'd like to spend my life playing jazz— it's how I express myself and feel complete."

MUSIC NOTES

Chamber Music Society sets annual competition, winners' concert for Saturday

THE 25TH Carmel Chamber Music Competition, sponsored by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula, will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at Sunset Center, San Carlos between Ninth and 10th, Carmel.

Winners of the competition for young musicians will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday at the same location. Both events are free.

Competing for four awards are two piano trios, one string quartet, one clarinet/string/piano quartet, three saxophone quartets, and one woodwind quintet.

The prizes are a $2,500 AT&T National Pro-Am Youth Award for strings, the $2,500 Angie Machado Award for woodwinds/brass, the $1,750 Florence Allen Award for any instrumental ensemble and the $1,250 W. Frederick Schaad Award for any instrumental ensemble.

Judges include music faculty from Stanford University and the University of California at Berkeley, as well as a retired San Francisco Symphony and San Francisco Opera Orchestra principal violist.

Through its annual competition, the Society seeks to encourage young musicians to pursue chamber music as a career.

More information: 625-1694.

Local gospel music promoters schedule gospel festival for Mother's Day weekend

M&A PRODUCTION, the Seaside-based duo of Melvin and Audrey Williams, who stage gospel concerts throughout the Peninsula, has scheduled its first-ever Gospel Festival for Saturday, May 11 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

The festival has lined up a myriad of gospel performers, among them:

- Disciples of Christ
- Sons of the Soul Revivers
- The Gospel Stars
- The Wilson Brothers
- The Mighty Serenade
- The Earthquake Gospel Singers
- The Olivet Oakland Choir
- Leroy Palmer
- The Mistery Machine
- local gospel singers

CSUMB arts center to have four theaters

keting study, and design drawings.

Richard Pilbrow, a theater project consultant and lighting designer for Broadway director/producer Hal Prince, is working with MBCA on a design concept for the 1750-seat, multipurpose concert hall or "lyric theater" which may be the first building in the arts center.

Pilbrow planned the refurbishing of the Geary Theater in San Francisco. AMS Marketing, a consulting firm from Petaluma, is working on the marketing study.

Marketing, fund-raising and design plans will continue concurrently for another year so that when a capital campaign drive is launched, conceptual plans will be in place. The Joint Planning Group will also create an agreement which outlines how funds will be used as the arts center takes shape.

'We're excited about contributing to the academic side of the arts. We can bring a lot of exciting artists to the area, and help develop artists who are already here.'

— Holly White, CSUMB News and Public Information Officer

At present, MBCA envisions an ultimate goal of four theaters: the large, 1750-seat theater, two mid-sized theaters of 400 to 500 seats, and a small, 100 to 200 seat experimental theater space. Two years ago the cost of the center was projected at $50 to $60 million.

The proposed site of the center lies along "the arts corridor," of 6th Avenue, west of the former base's Sea View Chapel which has been converted by CSUMB into its current music hall. According to Sageman, "The University has distinct plans for innovation," for the proposed center.

CSUMB News and Public Information Officer Holly White agrees, and adds, "We're excited about contributing to the academic side of the arts. We can bring a lot of exciting artists to the area, and help develop artists who are already here. We want to have the center developing musical and artistic talent. We don't want to duplicate or compete with what's already here."

Sageman, a retired AT&T executive who came to the Peninsula in 1986, was on the selection committee for CSUMB president Peter Smith, and is now excited and optimistic about the partnership which has been forged.

"Joint planning is very important," Sageman said. "We're not two separate groups which are sitting down to negotiate."

Unify the county

And he sees the project as something which can unify the county, noting that the proposed site is equidistant between Salinas and Monterey.

Rich Patterson, director of community affairs of the Pebble Beach Company and co-chair of community relations for MBCA, agrees. He characterizes Sageman and Sally Smith, a volunteer from the CSUMB Planning Office who is chair of the Joint Planning Group, as "not only intelligent and meticulous, but enthusiastic."

He also emphasizes the need "to make sure we work closely with key cities who may have concerns (about the project). It's a case of unifying the area behind (the project) to raise excitement."

In addition to chairperson Sally Smith, Peter Smith's appointees to the Joint Planning Group are: Steven Reed, Associate Vice President for University Advancement; Richard Bains, Professor of Music and Performing Arts; Lee Caplin, Professor of Teledramatic Arts and Technology; and David Salazar, CSUMB Director of Facilities Planning and Development.

Sageman's appointees are: Nicholas E. Chiulos, Monterey County Chief of Planning Services; Gloria C. Mattos Hughes, President, Central Coast Chapter of the National Artists' Equity Association; Nicolas Papadakis, Executive Director, Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments; and Richard Tyler, retired Cultural Director of Carmel.

Susan Hoffman, Executive Director of the California Confederation of the Arts and Special Advisor to CSU, is representing Barry Munitz, Chancellor of the CSU system.

Further information about the art center planning process may be obtained by calling the Joint Planning Group office, 384-6222.

SPCA TO MICROCHIP ALL ADOPTED ANIMALS

Thanks to generous grants from the Hardin Foundation and The SPCA Auxiliary of the Monterey Peninsula, The SPCA of Monterey County will now implant microchips into all adopted animals, and will be able to offer low-cost microchip implant services to the public.

Microchips, roughly the size of a grain of rice, are painlessly implanted under the skin of animals, and provide permanent ID for pets. Microchips contain owner information including a phone number, and animals that have chips have an extremely high rate of being returned to their owners. The SPCA already scans all animals brought to its shelter with equipment that can detect and read chips from any maker.

The SPCA will kick off it's microchip program May 5, 1996, the start of Be Kind to Animals Week, by offering a low-cost microchip clinic. From 9 am to noon at The SPCA on Highway 68. The SPCA will offer chip implants for a cost of $15.95 per pet. There is an additional charge to place your information on a national network. For more information about The SPCA's microchip program, call 373-2631 ext. 227.

We make a donation to The SPCA the first time you use our service.

Ricketts' friend believes lab, park better sites for statue

Ariss's wish now is that the decision to place the sculpture at the crash site will also change.

"They could have put it in the park across from the lab or in the lab itself," she said. "This is my reaction. It's mine and mine alone." But unless the statue is moved, she said, "I don't want to have anything to do with it."

Ariss said that she had not discussed the matter with either of Ricketts' children, Ed Jr. or Nancy, because "I didn't want to influence them."

Bettina Hotelling, wife of Cannery Row Foundation President Neal Hotelling, said that she had contacted both Nancy and Ed Jr. and had received what she called a "favorable response" from Nancy, who now lives in Sitka, Alaska.

Hotelling said that Nancy "was pleased with our intentions" and that she had also indicated that whatever the foundation decided was all right with her.

The park Ariss refers to occupies the site of Cannery Row's "vacant lot," and it is home to benches, landscaping, and three restored cannery workers' cabins, the interiors of which evoke the novel's "Palace Flophouse," which resided up the hill across the railroad track.

Reclaiming the favorite son

Ariss also expressed an impatience with the whole idea of memorializing both Steinbeck and Ricketts.

"Remember," she said, "Steinbeck wasn't even welcome in his own home town. I remember going over to Salinas with John in the back of the truck under a blanket because he thought the growers had a contract out on him after he wrote In Dubious Battle."

Yet over the years, she has skeptically watched the area reclaim its so-called favorite son. "Now, everything is named for him," she said.

Said Ariss of placing the Ricketts statue at the crash site, "If everybody's happy about it, and that's the way it is, then it will go ahead. But I am absolutely set against it."

The moment of dying

Hemp points to a passage from The Log from the Sea of Cortez, to which both Steinbeck and Ricketts contributed. Hemp feels the meaning of the passage is that "It is important that the site of a man's death be recognized," and this interpretation of the passage contributed to the Foundation's decision to place the statue at the crash site.

The actual passage, toward the end of Chapter 9, reads:

"It seems good to mark and to remember for a little while the place where a man died. In every other thing, even in his birth, he is bound close to others, but the moment of his dying is his own. ... A grave is quite a different thing. Here one's family boasts, or lies, or excuses, in material of elegance and extravagance. But that is a family or a social matter, not the dead man's own at all."

Perhaps Ricketts would have reacted to the current controversy the same way he did to Steinbeck's portrayal of him as "Doc" in Cannery Row. Upon reading the unpublished manuscript, Ricketts said to Steinbeck, "Let it go that way. It is written in kindness. Such a thing can't be bad."

PRT's 'Birds' too problematic to fly

By KENDALL KLYM

LIKE A flock of birds that got trapped in Samuel Beckett's garbage can in Waiting for Godot, Conference of the Birds just didn't fly.

Miscast characters, rushed lines, sophomoric costuming and poor direction turned Peter Brook and Jean-Claude Carrière's complex theatrical expression of a 12th century poem into a flurry of theatrical schizophrenia. A surrealistic melange of feathered creatures trying their wings at personification in a distinctively '70s style of staunch existentialism made for a long hour and 15 minutes.

Review

WHAT: 'Conference of the Birds'
WHEN: 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 3; 2/7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 4
WHERE: Circle Theatre of the Golden Bough Playhouse, Casanova between Eighth and Ninth, Carmel
COST: $15 adults, $10 students/seniors
INFO/RESERVATIONS: 622 - 0700

Instead of experiencing the buildup of tension as the birds traveled through a vast desert and valleys representing ecstasy, understanding, annihilation and a few other intense emotions, the audience sat through a disjointed maze of anecdotes.

Perhaps most of the blame should go to Director John Rousseau. Miscasting the actors and then throwing them in pajamas and feathered tiaras did not make for a coherent rendition of anything.

Hughett the saving grace

Perhaps the only saving grace was the heartfelt portrayal of the Hoopoe, played by Julie Hughett. In spite of all the unconvincing stabs at personification by the other actors, Hughett convinced the audience that she was on a journey with her feathered friends to find their king.

When she uttered the words, "Wherever I look, I see nothing but trouble," the audience knew what she said really was true.

The other characters were troublesome. With their complex yet significant roles, they failed to transform the scene into a surrealistic world of annihilation. Instead of experiencing a unique paradox where weightlessness becomes heaviness through the portrayal of fable-like anecdotes, the audience watched people running around flapping their arms trying to act funny. (If only they could have bent their elbows when they flapped it might have looked pretty.)

As the duck, Brian Huntington did a fine job of speaking with a cleft palate — a comic way of portraying a duck. But he failed to carry the role any further than that. The audience was still left with the question of how would a duck act if it could speak?

As the falcon, Desmond Lewis projected his role with a falcon-like sense of dominance, but he spoke so quickly that his lines were lost.

Yet in spite of all of the plays' shortcomings, the audience, half-filling the "theater in the round," seemed to enjoy the production.

Perhaps that was the point. In the genre of '70s-style existentialism, callow shallowness might be the way to go.

Fortunately, though, we're in the '90s, when plays should not require the audience to consume a few doses of an illegal substance to experience a production that flies.

Foreshadowing...

Orestes (Frank Borovitch) and his sister Electra (Susan Forrest) kneel at the tomb of Agamemnon, surrounded by the Chorus of Slaves, in the Staff Players Repertory Co.'s production of Aeschylus' 'The Choephoroe' (The Libation Bearers). A review of the play will appear in next week's edition. For show times, see CALENDAR beginning on page 10B.

■ Theater sets 'May Madness & Fantasy Auction' fund-raiser

PACIFIC REPERTORY Theatre will hold its annual fund-raiser, the May Madness & Fantasy Auction, at 6 p.m. Saturday, May 11 at the Golden Bough Playhouse, Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth, Carmel.

The event includes a live auction, main stage entertainment, appetizers and a silent auction.

Main stage entertainment includes a "Best of the Bough" performance of excerpts from popular Pacific Rep shows. Opening the eentertainment are Lucille Huntington's Satin Dolls.

Items to be auctioned include private in-home performances by featured artists, vacations and dining opportunities.

Admission is $50 per person. Information: 622-0700.

■ Lewitzky Dance Co. coming to Carmel for possibly last time

PERFORMANCE CARMEL will present the Lewitzky Dance Co. in what may be the last chance for Carmel audiences to see the company at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 11 at the Sunset Theater.

Bella Lewitzky, whose dance career was launched with Alvin Ailey's mentor Lester Horton, is considered one of the West Coast's leading representative of modern dance. She will be retiring after the 1996-97 season and her company disbanding.

Tickets are priced at $12.50 and $16, and are available at the center.

Taste of the Nation: Food, wine and gorgeous views

WHEN YOU'RE in the Presidential Suite atop the Embassy Suites in Seaside, sipping Buena Vista champagne and nibbling on crab hors d'oeuvres, life is good. Then, when you chance to look through the high-powered telescope there and see dolphins swimming, life becomes magnificent!

All of the above took place at a private party Sunday, April 20, prior to the Taste of the Nation gala held in the hotel's Grand Ballroom. And what a gala — the room was filled with wine, food and people eager to taste them.

Each year the food and wine offered by more than 40 bistros and wineries, like The Sardine Factory, Bernardus Winery, Abalonetti, Monterey Joe's, Michael's Catering and Tarpy's Roadhouse, just gets better.

The cake offered by Syl and Karen Enea of Monterey Joe's was something to die for. Layers of light and creamy fillings, with whipped cream and a delightful wine sauce, prompted everyone at our table return for seconds.

Everyone who loves to eat was there — that means all Monterey Peninsula socialites! It was good to see Patricia Smith Ramsey (who's lost weight and looks great!) again.

The silent auction featured paintings, mirrors, tennis lessons, beautiful sweaters and food packages. A $10,000 trip from Hong Kong to Singapore was bid on and won for a few thousand dollars during the live auction.

Taste of the Nation was originated by the late Col. Frank Rogers, who watched the event grow into an outpouring of care and love for the people who need the Monterey County Food Bank and Peninsula Outreach, the two charities the gala benefits. The event was sponsored by the American Express Company.

Artist Will Bullas, Sardine Factory general manager Bill Quon Lee, Claudia Bullas and Sardine Factory co-owner Ted Balestreri enjoy the Taste of the Nation gala. Balestreri was one of the event's co-sponsors.

■ The stars of Dance Kids shine in new show

In the movie Dick Tracy, Warren Beatty played the title role in the colorful and entertaining film based on the famous cartoon character of the same name.

In the musical revue Dance Kids Look at the Funnies, which opened Friday, April 26 and continues through May 5, three- and four-year-old actors portrayed every cartoon character dating from Richard Outcault's "The Yellow Kid" (circa 1895), and like Beatty, they made the show an entertaining romp.

With Dance Kids, Inc. Director Carol Benton and producer/writer Walt deFaria at the helm, the youngsters came in on cue, knew their lines and were altogether as professional as any group of child actors anywhere! DeFaria's writings are wonderfully clever.

A receptive audience at the Carmel Ballet Academy Theatre watched "Peanuts" characters Lucy, played by talented Kristen Guy, and Charlie Brown, enacted by Marshall Goodwin, introduce the rest of the cast. The "Red Baron," Snoopy the beagle (Arletta Anderson), had some of the best punch lines.

Other cast members included Teora Dobronte as Bugs Bunny, Antonette Balesteri as Little Lulu, Enjoli Shannon as a wonderful Betty Boop, Lara Wheeler as Felix the Cat, and of course, all the small fry, who sang several tunes with aplomb.

And what costumes! Holly Goodwin's sewing machines did overtime on costumes for Superman, Batman and Robin, Spiderman, little Snoopies, Casper the Friendly Ghost and a whole community of Lil' Abner characters right out of Dogpatch.

The only oversized member of the cast was versatile Howard Hinckley who was Daddy Warbucks to Catherine Nicora's Annie. Hinckley shaved his head for the role! He and Nicora performed a number at the pre-theatre silent auction held at Il Fornaio restaurant in Carmel earlier that afternoon.

Dance Kids, Inc., a non-profit youth performing arts organization, was founded in 1993 by Carol Benton of the Carmel Ballet Academy. The production was made possible in part by grants from the Cultural Council for Monterey County and by the co-sponsorship of The Carmel Pine Cone/Monterey Times and MY BMW/Porsche.

It doesn't take a great detective like Dick Tracy to know that these Dance Kids will go far ... they really are star material!

For information regarding Dance Kids, Inc. write P.O. Box 2955, Carmel, 93921 or call 624-3729.

■ MPMA event a chocoholic's dream!

Cookies, bonbons, peanuts, raisins, caramels, nuts and biscotti, all covered with chocolate, tempted guests Saturday, April 27 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Sixth Annual chocolate extravaganza and dance.

The "Chocolate Cha Cha Cha" event featured blues band Red Beans & Rice, door prizes galore, beverages and of course heavenly chocolates.

Artists Gail Reeves, Ed Moody, Johnny Apodaca, Susan Dorf, Jane Vondrak Flury and others, working in pairs, created huge panels for the silent auction. Reeves painted Moody as St. Francis, an action Moody was

■ Community bands together for Christmas in April

Awe-inspiring! Four months after Christmas, they're still giving gifts. Who? The Monterey/Salinas area volunteers of the 154th Chapter of Christmas in April.

On Saturday, April 27, Chuck and I drove by 229 Lobos in Pacific Grove, which was being renovated by more than 80 volunteers — bankers, construction workers, more than 40 people from the Defense Language Institute and others.

I couldn't believe what I saw — volunteer painters, plumbers, electricians, carpenters and gardeners were completely rehabilitating Gladys Thompson's cottage, built in 1910, and yard.

Monterey Vice Mayor Dave Potter, one of those supervising the workers, showed us an ancient box filled with antique bottles that he had just found underneath the house.

Project leader Herschel Harrod related that unskilled laborers throughout the United States were volunteering on that last Saturday of April for a one-day renovation of homes owned by low income, disabled and elderly persons.

Christmas in April volunteers also donate new refrigerators, ovens, kitchen appliances and garden plants to make homes safer and more beautiful.

Gladys Thompson stands by a brand new stove donated by volunteers who also renovated and painted her home in Pacific Grove.

Calvin Brown hefts an overhead light-fan for installation at 229 Lobos in Pacific Grove Saturday.

Corporate sponsors include Home Depot, California-American Water Co., Bank of America, Household Credit, Comerica Bank and We're At Your Service.

We drove back to the home the following day and hardly recognized it. The look on Mrs. Thompson's face as she stared at her newly painted living room and new back steps gave some of the volunteers who were still there all the thanks they could ever want.

Carl F. Rebstock, vice president and cofounder of the local chapter, summed it up when he said, "The getting is in the giving."

More information about Christmas in April may be obtained by calling 899-5695.

Bowmans adjusting to life without their Fireside Gallery

"It's been difficult," Dorothy admits. "Having been in the visual arts most of my life, blindness isn't easy to accept."

And Jack, dealing with the contents of the gallery and continuing his role as chief cook and bottle washer, admits he gets tired.

But overall the two are philosophical about their present life.

"We've handled it well," Jack notes. "I wouldn't take a prize for housecleaning, but when we start sneezing, I start dusting!"

And he's looking forward to the time, when the business of closing the gallery is finished, that he can return to painting.

Dorothy is especially grateful for what Carmel has given the couple: a place where people were informed about and loved art for its own sake and "an ideal environment for raising children, where they were exposed to high quality."

The exposure took. The Bowmans' daughter, Christina, is a successful commercial interior designer, and their son, Randolph, is first chair flutist for the Cincinnati Symphony and is featured on a recent guitar and flute release of Andrew Lloyd Webber's music.

Dorothy extends her thanks to the Fireside Gallery's artists and clients.

Tor House Garden Party set for Sunday

THE ANNUAL Tor House Garden Party will be held from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at 26304 Ocean View Ave. (near Stewart Way) in Carmel.

The event features music by Robert McNamara on strings, Elise Rotchford on flute and Edie Karas on piano. Sandwiches, sweets and teas will be served.

Proceeds from the admission price — $10 general, $8 seniors — will support the Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation. No children under 12 will be admitted.

More information: 624-1813.

Information explosion in industry comes with some risks

IMAGINE BEING in the middle of negotiating a house purchase and instantly finding out how much equity the seller has by learning how big their mortgage is.

Or, what if you could hit a few key strokes on your home computer and discover what similar homes sold for over the last 10 years including your new neighbor's home?

This is the promise of the information age: to give us faster and better information about nearly everything we do, from where to find the best places to take a wilderness hike to buying a home. Raw government data and public records are being turned into easy-to-use computer files through the Internet.

Though the trend raises serious issues about personal privacy, the data promises to empower the consumer with better information about what they are buying and how they are going about it.

For example, the Iowa Real Estate Commission put its complete list of licensed real estate agents up on the Internet including the standing of individual agents and any dings on their license records. Though it has been slow to make its public records accessible through the Internet, the California Real Estate Commission is considering a similar step.

California Trends

By Bradley Inman

Self-reliant consumer

While it isn't a certainty that the public indeed wants all this data, it is a response to a more aware and self-reliant consumer who expects to know how things work, what it costs and who pays for what.

It is also a business opportunity for credit reporting and other information companies that gather statistics about consumer shopping habits and for real estate investors who study government records such as foreclosure and late property tax payments in order to buy homes at a discount.

This explains why the real estate and publishing industries are rushing to give us electronic access to piles of government data-such as assessor records, which can tell us exactly how much homes sold for in a particular neighborhood, mortgage-deed information and which properties have been slapped with liens.

"Government information on property sales blended with population statistics and home listings has the potential to create an awesome consumer and business data base," said W.B. Freeman, an information consultant for Clareity Consulting in Des Moines, Iowa.

New trade group

Last week in Washington, D.C., firms that specialize in real estate data collection formed a new trade group, the Real Estate Information Providers Association, to develop industry standards for how information is collected and how it is used.

The timing is right for some self policing because the compiling of public record data comes with threats to personal privacy and dangers of sophisticated white collar crime.

For example, let's say a scam artist wanted to take advantage of a rich widow. Using a personal computer and

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This gem sits at Junipero near Fifth in downtown Carmel.

Nestles into the landscape

PARTIALLY HIDDEN at the end of a quiet lane, this sturdy two-story home was remodeled in 1991.

It virtually nestles into the landscape with a board and plaster exterior, steeply pitched roof, brick chimney and small-paned windows. A high exposed-beam ceiling, curved staircase, fireplace and oak floors lend dignity to the two bedrooms, two baths and den.

The charm of the Carmel of yesterday still exists.

Market sales show mixed results in first quarter of '96

MARKET ACTIVITY in the first quarter of 1996 in Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, Monterey and Pacific Grove, taken as a whole, showed mixed results as sales were somewhat higher than last year's January to March period, but were lower than the fourth quarter of 1995.

Get Real

By Stephen Poohar

Industry leaders believe that these results may be an aberration, pointing out that the next few months may provide a better indication of the trend of the market, if any.

While sales levels maintained fairly constant levels in the five peninsula cities, Carmel sales fell sharply while Carmel Valley sales increased significantly. These results may be due to the timing of escrow closings.

The last weeks of the first quarter were marked by rising interest rates, which generally affect the sale of lower-priced properties more than higher-priced properties. These rates are expected to stabilize, or even decline, in the coming weeks.

Also, the faster pace of home sales have left some potential homebuyers out in the cold, as homes which they had considered purchasing were sold to others.

access to the county assessor's records, it is possible to compile lists of wealthy women who were recently divorced or windowed.

These files can be searched by mortgage deed type, which would show "affidavit of death" or "inter-spousal transfer." Then, it is a very simple to find out how much debt remains on the mortgage and how much equity there is — giving an inquiring mind some idea of the net worth of the person.

Going public

While much of this sort of information has been available for decades, it is difficult to find. And some data will be made public for the first time, such as multiple home listing information.

Though a seller signs an agreement that their name and phone number will not be used, it would be easy for a savvy computer user to find whose house is being put on the market.

Concern about personal privacy has prompted State Sen. Steve Peace, D-Chula Vista, to draft a bill that could limit public access to such information.

Senate Bill 1659 would prohibit a person or corporation from distributing "for profit any personal information concerning a person without that person's written consent." The bill goes onto say such "information includes, but is not limited to, an individual's credit history, finances, medical history, purchases and travel patterns."

Pending in the state senate, the far-reaching measure is expected to be amended before final passage.

The bill is an example of steps that will be taken to curb the information explosion.

Two essential elements in analyzing the real estate market are the number of closed sales per period and the median sales prices for such a period.

Closed sales

Analysis of the above "Closed Sales" table — taken together with discussions with local Realtors, loan officers, mortgage brokers and title company escrow officers — reveals that the local market during the first quarter of '96 slipped somewhat from the sales levels of the fourth quarter of '95, while increasing slightly from the levels in the first quarter of '95.

As more and more homes come on the market, or are placed back on the market, for the spring selling season, it will be interesting to see if the increasing inventory of homes for sale affects the number of homes sold during the second and third quarters of '96.

Median prices (see separate table) are more problematic for purposes of analysis. Prices in Carmel and Pebble Beach have generally remained stable over the last three months, while prices in Carmel Valley have rebounded from lower levels in 1995. Prices in Monterey and Pacific Grove declined slightly.

When compared to the same period last year, median prices have increased slightly throughout the Monterey Peninsula, with the exception of the large increase in Carmel Valley, which can be explained in part by the sale of new homes.

The lower the number of sales in any given area the less meaningful those median price changes are.

No Such Thing as "No Cost" Loans

Whether you are considering a home purchase or a refinance of your current mortgage, you may have seen advertisements offering "No Cost" or "No Fee" loans. If this sounds too good to be true, you're right!

There are always certain costs which are inherent in obtaining a new mortgage on your home: title insurance, escrow, appraisal, credit report, etc. Someone must pay these fees! The way that you pay for them in a "No Cost" loan is to spread the cost over the loan by accepting a higher interest rate and monthly payment. Here's an example of a $200,000 loan:

| Int. Rate | Cost | Payment |
|---|---|---|
| 8.625 | 0 | $1,555.58 |
| 8.00 | $4500 | $1,467.53 |
| | Difference: | $88.05 |

Over this 30 year mortgage the homeowners would pay an additional $27,198 for this "No Cost" loan. In effect, they are financing the closing costs and points.

Certainly there are situations where this type of financing may be to your advantage — but you need to understand the true cost.

AUTHOR PROFILE

Phil Cisneros tries to make world better place through his children's books

By DEBORAH SHARP

IN AN airport one day Phil Cisneros met an Egyptian and his young son. When the Egyptian told Cisneros his nationality, Cisneros exclaimed, "Anwar Sadat was one of my heroes!"

"Anwar Sadat was a traitor," was the terse reply.

Hoping to save the situation, Cisneros thought for a moment and tried again, "Won't it be wonderful when children can grow up in a world of peace, without fear?"

Silence. And then the Egyptian pick up his toddler and put him in Cisneros' arms. "I give you my child for the words you have spoken," he said.

Cisneros, a teacher, writer, entertainer, and activist for world peace and an end to hunger, keeps the picture the Egyptian took of him and the child on a wall in his apartment, along with pictures of his mother, father, siblings and the people he has met in the course of his efforts to advance the things he believes.

The pictures help him remember where he came from and what he's working for.

Phil Cisneros

For the past 21 years Cisneros has taught elementary school in Monterey, Salinas, North County, San Jose and Idaho, and has led motivational workshops for teachers and businesspeople. He is also the immediate past president of the Monterey Bay Chapter of the United Nations Association.

In February he resigned from his job teaching third graders in Salinas to promote the book he recently wrote and illustrated, Snowy: The Story of a Reluctant Snowflake, to lobby on Capitol Hill on behalf of the United Nations, to moderate a panel in Washington on creating model United Nations chapters and to accept the Kellogg Foundation's "Expert in Residence" award. This recognition will take him to Michigan for a week of appearances in the Battle Creek schools and city library.

The book that has led to Cisneros' shift in teaching venues is the story of a young snowflake who isn't at all sure he wants to follow his destiny.

Lessons to learn

"Snowy wanted to stay in his comfort zone," explains Cisneros, who notes that the book is about believing in dreams and oneself. "You can go for it and still be afraid. Kids think you have to have it together before you try, but you just have to go for it. You'll have feelings (of fear), so you take them with you. It took Snowy the act of leaving, of trusting and believing, to make his life happen."

In the book, the cloud Snowy is sitting on gives the young flake some good advice. As a result, Snowy takes the plunge to earth, gets more beautiful as he falls, delights two children as he passes their window, and lands on earth thinking, "This is the great life of a snowflake!"

Cisneros has discovered that adults, as well as children, need the book's message. He's received letters from adults who have read the book to their children and gotten something from it themselves.

The author credits his own upbringing for helping him learn the lessons he passes on to others. His parents were both born in Mexico, and the family can count in their heritage Mexican, Indian and Dutch ancestry.

Cisneros grew up with a strong sense of his cultural heritage, but also a sense of the kind of cooperative effort — cutting across cultural lines — necessary to get things accomplished. His father was a Marine, so the family lived on military bases in a milieu that fosters cooperation.

"My father taught us that what comes first is the mission, the job to be done," Cisneros says. "We had our own culture and never lost a sense of it, but I also know I'm not my culture. People are afraid of losing their culture, but if you're not afraid to give it away, you don't lose it. Everyone has something to contribute. Prejudice will stop when we realize this.."

Phil's just-released book, Gabriella Gecko, aims to help children with this sense of belonging. The little gecko (a small lizard that lives on every continent but Antarctica) loves to wander but develops a need for belonging and tries to become like a number of other things in nature before she realizes that she belongs to herself and so can belong anywhere.

Cisneros doesn't know precisely what it is in his own writing that has proven so popular, but he does have an idea of what all writers contribute.

"People are going through an evolution, and we use literature to discover what's going on inside of us," he says. "Writers are used to further the evolution of humanity. People are interested in creating their own future, and they want to be true to themselves. They don't want to be part of a cog."

Cisneros follows his own philosophy of individual worth dedicated to cooperative action. He loves to tell the story of his introduction to the idea of being a global citizen. It came from his mother.

Late in the '60s, when global pollution was first being talked about, he and his mother one day watched a television program about the problem. He got excited about it and said he wanted to do something to help.

"You really care about this problem? You really want to help?" his mother asked. "Sure," he answered.

"Then go clean up your room!"

Cisneros has been a global citizen ever since.

He employs his various talents to promote a healthy, peaceful world through individual action: the $25,000 benefit climb he and others made up Mt. Rainer for the Hunger Project, the singing he led at the opening of the International Games in Moscow, and his books, the messages of which just might help children (and adults) make themselves, and the world, a lot stronger.
